Seventh War Loan Drive Starts Monday

Prayers, not noise greet V-E Day here

The people of Arlington Heights observed V-E day Tuesday with the solemnity called forth by the realization that there is another war yet to be won. Prayers and expressions of thankfulness to the deity on high were expressed that day in three services. No single Arlington auditorium would have been large enough to accommodate the great number that attended the observances in the churches.

St. Peter church

St. Peter church held a record-breaking audience of 902 persons at the European Victory Service arranged by Pastor Stephan Tuesday evening. The Treble and children choirs both sang and the entire service was one of thanksgiving and praise. Rev. Stephan delivered a sermon that expressed thankfulness for the victory that had been secured by the armed forces and recognized God's guiding hand in the rebuke that had been delivered to Nazism and all it stands for. The pastor issued supplications for the Lord's divine guidance and blessing in the war against Japan.

The offering, amounting to $200 was added to the five million dollar Peace Thankoffering that churches throughout the Lutheran world are gathering this year. Arlington Heights Lutheran congregation has contributed $6,500 to the fund.

St. James church

St. James Catholic church was filled with parishioners for the special victory service that was held in all Catholic churches of the Chicago diocese that evening. The service, appropriate for the solemn occasion included devotions to Our Mother of Perpetual Help, the Rosary for Thanksgiving, and for the boys killed and wounded and the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Union service

A union service of praise and thanksgiving was conducted by the First Methodist, Presbyterian and St. John Evangelical and Reformed church in the First Presbyterian church Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock with the church filled to capacity.

The prayer litanies of thanksgiving, penitence, intercession, remembrance and dedication, were in charge of the Rev. W. F. Kamphenkel, pastor of St. John Evangelical and Reformed church. Two brief messages, "remembrance" and "dedication" were delivered by the Rev. Milo J. Vondracek, pastor of the First Methodist church.

The congregational singing was led by the Presbyterian church choir under the direction of Axel E. Johnson and accompanied by Miss Ruth Johnson. Anthem, "The Land of Hope and Glory" and prayer responses were also sung by the choir.

This service was indeed impressive, solemn and challenging. The service of worship used was prepared and issued by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, to which most protestant churches belong.

Christian Science church

A service of Thanksgiving was held at eight o'clock Tuesday evening at the Arlington Heights Christian Science church, in accordance with the proclamation of President Truman.

Son calls inhalator and saves life of his father

Prompt action on the part of James, son of Leo Des Jardins, 410 South Vail, Arlington Heights, saved his father's life last Thursday. Recognizing that his father was experiencing a heart attack and realizing the need of an inhalator which he had seen demonstrated at his school, he phoned the police for the machine and called a physician. Messrs. Frank Jahn, Stubby Meyer and Curly Rodewald arrived with the inhalator and had it in operation by the time that the physician arrived on the scene. Seven tanks were used, some of them being obtained from Palatine and Mt. Prospect fire departments.

Mr. DesJardins has been moved to Billings Memorial hospital. Without the use of the inhalator he would have in all probability lost his life.

Aged and adult charities tag day next Monday

Monday, May 14, will be the annual tag day for the Chicago Federation of Aged and Adult charities in the Chicago area.

This federation is non-sectarian and was organized in 1916. There are 38 homes that participate. Arlington Heights Lutheran Old Folks Home is a member and shares in the benefits of tag day.

Won't you help the old folks on May 14 and buy a tag?

Arlington closes up V-E day

Arlington Heights business district followed the action of other communities and with the exception of essential services closed up tight on V-E Day Tuesday. The Chamber of Commerce at its meeting Thursday evening endorsed unit action on the part of all business houses. The extent of that action was left with the officers of the organization. Chicago chains have given their local store managers authority to "follow local custom" and all stores followed the suggestion of the Chamber of Commerce that they close their stores all day Tuesday.

Forrest Bass wounded in Italy

Pfc. Forrest Bass of Arlington Heights was wounded April 19 in Italy, it was learned this week. War department wire arrived Tuesday morning, though a previous letter from Forrest told of his wounds. The wounds were rated as "slight".

Pfc. Bass went overseas the end of January this year, going directly to Italy. He served with the 87th infantry regiment in Italy. Forrest trained at several camps in the States, including Camp Hale, Colorado, where he underwent ski troop training.

His regiment was formed at Camp Hale, from where the entire group was shifted to Camp Swift, Texas, in July of '44. Extensive maneuvers were held in Texas prior to his shipment overseas.

V-E day brings word husband is alive

There was double rejoicing on V-E day Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Fred Kieser, 210 N. State rd. Arlington Heights.

Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Lavina Kieser received a card from the government that her husband, Jack Kieser, previously reported missing on December 19, was a prisoner in Germany, although slightly wounded at that time. The card which was written December 26, had taken over four months to arrive here. It was the first word that Mrs. Kieser had received since the arrival January 7 of the "missing" notice.

V-E day also meant that Jack is no longer a prisoner and additional word is awaited by the happy wife and mother.

Jack has been in the armed service nearly four years and took part in the D-Day invasion of France. He was married in August, 1942. Mrs. Keiser is doing her part on the home front by working at the Arlington Packaging Co., which this week received a very large rush order for use in the Pacific war front.

Arizona family likes the paper, asks subscription

When Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Dahms of Palatine changed their address to Phoenix, Arizona, for the winter, the editors didn't dream they would become salesmen for the Enterprise. But that is just what thy did, as per a letter received this week from the Ed Barbaras family in Phoenix. The letter follows:

"Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Dahms, one of your subscribers, spent the winter here in Phoenix. They came over to see us every week, bringing their paper for us to read. Now that they have returned to Illinois we wish to subscribe. We find the boys' letters from different places they are stationed and fighting very interesting."

Cubs get help in obtaining uniforms

Charles Doellefield of 635 N. Chestnut, a Den Dad of Pack 232, has set up a uniform exchange for Arlington Heights Cub Scouts. Any cub or parent who desires to buy, sell, or rent any article of the cubs' uniform is invited to get in touch with Mr. Doellefield by telephoning Arlington Heights 161.

Zoning expert to study parking conditions here

Robert Kingery to report to Chamber or Commerce

Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce may soon be in a position to make a definite recommendation to the village regarding the solving of Arlington's parking troubles. Robert Kingery, chairman of Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals, will be invited to spend an afternoon in the business district June 7 and that evening make parking recommendations to the business men, who in turn will pass on their own recommendations to the village authorities.

The Chamber of Commerce now has a paid up membership of 81 and as President Bauman says, "there are a number of business firms that have not yet been heard from."

Members present at the May meeting last Thursday voiced their approval of the suggestion of the officers to have Mr. Kingery "look us over."

Several members expressed themselves on the parking situation, even to the extent of suggesting the purchase of a public parking lot. Mayor Goedke advised the members that until "you fellows find a parking lot, the police will take no action against violators of present parking laws."

Taboo on rackets

If the members of the Chamber of Commerce take the advice of the organization, advertising racketeers will find Arlington poor picking from now on. Efforts of salesmen to interest local business men in advertising time on a Chicago radio station were condemned as was also the sale of advertising space in a police magazine.

One hundred memberships by June 1st is the goal that has been set by the Chamber of Commerce membership committee. "A strong membership means funds with which to accomplish things that need doing in Arlington Heights," states Secretary Carl M. Behrens.

Thermal-Tite loses 1st round; new hearing

Local objectors win first hearing before zone board

Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals took official action May 1 that may deprive the Thermal-Tite Insullation Co. of the right to repair their factory building in Arlington Heights which was partially destroyed by fire October 27, 1944. Zoning board members present were Chairman Robert Kingery, Russell B. James, William E. Quirk and William L. Voss, Sr. The vote was unanimous.

A permit issued by the enforcing officer of January 5, 1945, for the reconstruction of the building was revoked by him on Jan. 19. The findings read in part: "The said permit No. 12399, having been issued under a mistake of fact and the enforcing officer having used due diligence and having acted promptly upon discovering said mistake, the revocation of said permit was valid and proper and is hereby sustained."

The door is not yet closed on the repair of the factory building. A hearing will be held at the Arlington Heights hall May 22 on the reclassification of the property in question. If the zoning board places the land into the light manufacturing class as requested by the Thermal-Tite Manufacturing Co., they will be able to proceed with their building operations and resume the manufacture of insullating material.

Attorney Harvey Adams has represented the objectors in previous hearings. His clients are understood to be residents of Stonegate and Scarsdale, who claim that the operation of the plant produced a white sediment that is carried by wind currents onto their property.

The plant was originally erected on land that, according to the rules of the County Zoning Board, is "non-conforming", meaning that it has never been specifically zoned. Due to the extent of the fire damage and because of objections filed with the zoning board the company could not proceed with rebuilding plans. The board has now ruled that the company has no right to make the repairs on the land bearing the original classification. The firm's only redress is a change in the classification.

This poster is the work of Patricia Kule, 211 S. Elmhurst road, Mt. Prospect. She is a freshman in Arlington Heights high school.

T-Sgt. Cal Page missing over Austria

Now missing in action over Australia is T-Sgt. Calvin Page of Arlington Heights. War department wire Tuesday morning notified his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Page, that Calvin was missing in a raid over Austria April 25. Previous word from one of Cal's buddies urged the Pages not to worry if they didn't hear from Calvin for a time.

T-Sgt. Page entered service in December of 1941. He trained at numerous fields in this country, finally gaining his wings in June of 1944 at Laredo, Texas, as an aerial gunner. He later took combat crew training at Lincoln, Nebraska, and Tucson, Arizona, going overseas in 1944.

Cal was stationed with the 15th Air Force in Italy, the unit with two presidential citations to its credit. These had been granted for work in support of the British 8th Army in Africa and the bombing of the Ploesti oil fields.

T-Sgt. Page flew his first mission in October of '44, when the squadron bombed supply channels at Villach, Austria. The group often worked in support with the Russian drive through German Silesia, Austria and the Balkans.

As an aerial engineer-gunner he racked up more than 25 missions with his B-24 group. He was awarded at least one Air Medal the early part of this year.

Cal is a graduate of Eden Prairie, Minn., high school before his family moved to Arlington Heights. His wife, Thelma, lives with his parents.

Chicago pastor to deliver hard punches at next Lions meeting

Rev. Adolph Bohn, pastor of Edgewater Presbyterian church will be guest speaker at the Lions Club meeting May 15. There will be some real punches in what he has to say, according to M. W. Prellberg, program chairman. Rev. Bohn's subject will be "Power" which Rev. Bohn has warned Mr. Prellberg is not always complimentary to humanity. In accepting the invitation to speak, Rev. Bohn said of his subject: "there is a clear evidence of it almost anywhere these days and unless it is controlled the very thing we develop and strive for in the many manifestations of power become the tools of civilization's destruction."

The speaker offered to choose a different subject if Mr. Prellberg thought the Lions would not be able to take such strong talk.

Brownout ends, racing begins

With announcement of V-E day came the word that the "brown-out" had ended. Local officials were immediately notified by the Public Service Co. and passed the word along to the general public. The racing ban was also lifted and operators of race tracks began immediate plans for summer racing in the Chicago area. The lifting of the racing ban will not make any difference in Arlington Heights as the curb on transportation to races still stands and Arlington Park will again be closed for the season.

New phones not available for some time

"Recent reports concerning the partial lifting of restrictions on the manufacture of telephone instruments have given rise to false hopes on the part of people who are waiting for telephone service," Mr. Mason, manager for the Illinois Bell Telephone Company, said today. "To the extent that availability of materials and manpower permits, additional telephones will be manufactured, but there is a tremendous waiting list of people who want telephone service, some 1,800,000 of them throughout the country. The communication industry still is obligated to provide equipment to carry on the war and will continue to do so even with the defeat of Germany."

Mr. Mason said the important thing to remember is that the majority of these 1,800,000 people cannot get service because there are not enough switchboards and other central office equipment, as well as cable and other line facilities which are necessary to provide service.

"Accordingly," Mr. Mason added, "even if the company had adequate supplies of telephone instruments, which it does not, and cannot expect to have for some time, it would still be quite a while before service could be given to all who want it. The manufacture and installation of central office equipment, which has practically been at a standstill for civilian service during the war, is an intricate and time-consuming operation, much more so than the manufacture of telephone instruments.

"We appreciate the patience and understanding shown by those on the waiting list. We are doing our utmost to meet everyone's needs at the earliest possible moment."

Benjamin Electric seeks workers for permanent jobs

Benjamin Electric Co., of Des Plaines, has an expansion program that calls for 250 more employees. One hundred fifty of the positions are being reserved for former employees who are in war service. There are 100 permanent positions open today to new employees. These are essential jobs as long as the war in the Pacific lasts, and the post-war expansion of the company means the jobs will be permanent.

Supervised recreation this summer

Eleanor Kestin of high school will be in charge

Organized recreational activities will be conducted in Recreation Park this summer for a nine week period, June 11, through August 10. The park board has engaged Miss Eleanor Kestin, girls physical education instructor at the local high school, as director of the activities.

The general plan is to provide supervised play programs in the park for boys and girls during the mornings. In the afternoon the director will be in the swimming pool area to give instructions and supervise pool activities.

Detailed plans of the activities to be conducted mornings and afternoons will be arranged by Miss Kestin. Besides her experience in physical education, she has conducted supervised play ground activities in Evanston for ten years. Her experience in this type of work will make it possible to provide the type of program many local organizations are interested in seeing promoted for the children.

Since there has been a movement started by a number of local organizations interested in seeing supervised playground activities carried on this summer, the park board expresses their hope that the organizations will cooperate with the director to promote the idea in the community and make it a successful undertaking.

A number of large pieces of playground equipment have been ordered for the park, consisting of swings, slide and climbing apparatus. This equipment is expected to be erected in about a month.

Another softball field including a back stop that was built by the Den Dads has been installed in the southwest corner of the ball field. To the Den Dads the public owes a vote of thanks.

Arlington high senior play May 12

"Don't Take My Penny", a rousing three-act comedy by Anne Coulter Martens, will be presented by the Senior Class at the Arlington Heights Township High School, Saturday, May 12, at 8:15 p. m.

Kerry thinks that a woman's place is on the tennis courts. But Penny is practically convinced she is destined for Hollywood. Her presentation of the sleep walking scene from Macbeth is interesting even if it is somewhat novel. Lydia, as the flighty mother, who is more interested in giving other people lectures and advice about their home life than she is concerned about her own family, struggles through to a rude awakening.

The complications arising from dual characterizations provide an interesting and amusing glimpse into the private life of the Pringle family.

Miss Dorrine Petersen, speech teacher at the high school, is the director of the play.

Arlington war plant needs more workers

"V-E day means extra work for us. Since our product is needed for moving war materials from the European Theater of Operations to the South Pacific, I could certainly use 30 women and 2 men to help me out," said Ray Chmelik, manager of the Arlington Packaging Company on V-E day.

This Arlington Heights company has been engaged for the last war years in packing, in paper bags, a dehydrating mineral which prevents army and navy equipment from rusting and corroding.

With Germany defeated, vast quantites of war materials must be shipped to the South Pacific. The same guns and planes which blasted Germany into submission, will be used to bring the Sons of the Rising Sun to their knees. "I have a signal corps deadline to coincide with a convoy of strategic materials in the very near future," continued Mr. Chmelik, "and I can offer work to any loyal, patriotic women desiring to help. The work is pleasant and light, the pay is good, and they can practically set their own hours."

After the fine work that Mr. Chmelik and his company have done, the Herald feels sure that the people of this community will respond to help put over this final effort to bring peace to the entire world. The Arlington Packaging Company is located at 111 E. Davis st., and their phone number is Arlington Heights 1820.

BUY BONDS FOR PACIFIC VICTORY.

Arlington Heights quota is $140,000

Check your calendar. Mark the date of Monday, May 14. On that day, the Seventh War Loan Drive gets under way throughout the nation. In every city, village and town, in every rural area, community War Finance Committees are busy this week with last minute details, preparatory to what they hope will be a fast start on an obviously tremendous undertaking. The objective will be to meet the Government's announced request for War Bond Sales reaching the high total of fourteen billion dollars.

Many of us may wonder what necessitates at this time a War Loan Drive of the immense proportions of the "Mighty Seventh". The remaining remnants of the Nazi and Fascist combat forces in Italy have surrendered. Resistance in Germany has crumbled. Japan alone remains BUT the Treasury Department wishes to remind us all, as we read the news of victory in Europe, that the Battle of Japan has really only just begun, that the greatest single obstacle to the crushing of Japan is distance. Overpowering equipment, more of everything, will be needed. Great forces of fighting men—freshly outfitted and superably equipped —will have to be moved halfway round the world and supplied day-in, day-out by hundreds of ships now building. Dollars, and lots of them, are urgently needed now.

As in the Sixth Drive, emphasis in the Seventh is on sales to individuals, but more so. Americans as individuals are taking on their largest quota to date, seven billion dollars including four billions in Series E Bonds alone. Banks and other corporations will be asked to match this total and buy another seven billions, thereby accounting for the full fourteen billion sales goal. The drive will end officially on June 30.

The local War Finance Committee reports that Arlington Heights has been assigned a quota of $140,000. This is an increase of $40,000 over our quota in the Sixth Drive. We are asked to consider only sales to individuals as applicable to the meeting of our quota, although the Committee will of course welcome all classes of buyers.

The drive locally is organized on a house to house, store to store canvass . One of your patriotic neighbors, a Victory Volunteer, will call on you. Your Committee urges that you welcome him and subscribe to the very limit of your ability. As before, actual purchases may be made at the Arlington Heights National Bank, the local post Office or at Krause and Kehe's.

Save for your country—save for yourself, and buy your War Bonds in Arlington Heights.

War loan posters to be shown at the Arlington

Dear Neighbor:

Monday, May 14th, marks the official opening of the 7th War Loan Drive. The house-to-house canvass will begin all over the country. When your neighbor rings your door bell, won't you give him a pleasant welcome? It will make his job easier, and help to get the canvass done quickly.

Our youngsters were busy last week, finishing up their posters, and now that they're all done, I want you to know the names of the boys and girls whose posters were selected.

These posters will be used in the windows of our business houses to publicize the drive. And so that you'll see them all, the Women's Division of our local committee, headed by Mrs. Kenneth W. Kennedy, will move the posters around each week.

A number of posters, suitable for reproduction, will appear in the Arlington Heights Herald each week during the drive.

And this is not all—to further honor our talented school children, Donald Knapp, manager of the Arlington Theater, is making slides of all the posters selected by the judges, and will honor one school each week beginning Friday, May 18, by showing their posters on the screen.

The 7th War Loan Committee sincerely appreciates the efforts and hard work of all of the children who entered the poster project, and desires to thank them, and their teachers, too, for their long hours of extra work. Mrs. Collard and her poster committee, together with the judges, Mrs. N. R. Schwartz and Harry Freyermuth of Arlington Heights and Herbert Chidley of Palatine, did a grand job, and the Committee thanks them also. I'm sure all you good neighbors will be interested in seeing these posters in the paper and at the movies, and you'll be amazed at the excellence of their thought and presentation.

Next week we'll know all about the editorial contest and the results of the judging. Something doing every minute!

Of course, the prime object of the 7th War Loan Committee is to promote the sale of war bonds, and now that our posters and editorials, newspaper and movie publicity, is ready, our canvassers and their captains are ready to go to work. Monday, May 14th. THE TIME IS NOW. Let's make it the biggest gusher of them all.

Your Neighbor.

Zoning expert to study parking conditions here

Robert Kingery to report to Chamber or Commerce

Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce may soon be in a position to make a definite recommendation to the village regarding the solving of Arlington's parking troubles. Robert Kingery, chairman of Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals, will be invited to spend an afternoon in the business district June 7 and that evening make parking recommendations to the business men, who in turn will pass on their own recommendations to the village authorities.

The Chamber of Commerce now has a paid up membership of 81 and as President Bauman says, "there are a number of business firms that have not yet been heard from."

Members present at the May meeting last Thursday voiced their approval of the suggestion of the officers to have Mr. Kingery "look us over."

Several members expressed themselves on the parking situation, even to the extent of suggesting the purchase of a public parking lot. Mayor Goedke advised the members that until "you fellows find a parking lot, the police will take no action against violators of present parking laws."

Taboo on rackets

If the members of the Chamber of Commerce take the advice of the organization, advertising racketeers will find Arlington poor picking from now on. Efforts of salesmen to interest local business men in advertising time on a Chicago radio station were condemned as was also the sale of advertising space in a police magazine.

One hundred memberships by June 1st is the goal that has been set by the Chamber of Commerce membership committee. "A strong membership means funds with which to accomplish things that need doing in Arlington Heights," states Secretary Carl M. Behrens.

Thermal-Tite loses 1st round; new hearing

Local objectors win first hearing before zone board

Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals took official action May 1 that may deprive the Thermal-Tite Insullation Co. of the right to repair their factory building in Arlington Heights which was partially destroyed by fire October 27, 1944. Zoning board members present were Chairman Robert Kingery, Russell B. James, William E. Quirk and William L. Voss, Sr. The vote was unanimous.

A permit issued by the enforcing officer of January 5, 1945, for the reconstruction of the building was revoked by him on Jan. 19. The findings read in part: "The said permit No. 12399, having been issued under a mistake of fact and the enforcing officer having used due diligence and having acted promptly upon discovering said mistake, the revocation of said permit was valid and proper and is hereby sustained."

The door is not yet closed on the repair of the factory building. A hearing will be held at the Arlington Heights hall May 22 on the reclassification of the property in question. If the zoning board places the land into the light manufacturing class as requested by the Thermal-Tite Manufacturing Co., they will be able to proceed with their building operations and resume the manufacture of insullating material.

Attorney Harvey Adams has represented the objectors in previous hearings. His clients are understood to be residents of Stonegate and Scarsdale, who claim that the operation of the plant produced a white sediment that is carried by wind currents onto their property.

The plant was originally erected on land that, according to the rules of the County Zoning Board, is "non-conforming", meaning that it has never been specifically zoned. Due to the extent of the fire damage and because of objections filed with the zoning board the company could not proceed with rebuilding plans. The board has now ruled that the company has no right to make the repairs on the land bearing the original classification. The firm's only redress is a change in the classification.

T-Sgt. Cal Page missing over Austria

Now missing in action over Australia is T-Sgt. Calvin Page of Arlington Heights. War department wire Tuesday morning notified his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Page, that Calvin was missing in a raid over Austria April 25. Previous word from one of Cal's buddies urged the Pages not to worry if they didn't hear from Calvin for a time.

T-Sgt. Page entered service in December of 1941. He trained at numerous fields in this country, finally gaining his wings in June of 1944 at Laredo, Texas, as an aerial gunner. He later took combat crew training at Lincoln, Nebraska, and Tucson, Arizona, going overseas in 1944.

Cal was stationed with the 15th Air Force in Italy, the unit with two presidential citations to its credit. These had been granted for work in support of the British 8th Army in Africa and the bombing of the Ploesti oil fields.

T-Sgt. Page flew his first mission in October of '44, when the squadron bombed supply channels at Villach, Austria. The group often worked in support with the Russian drive through German Silesia, Austria and the Balkans.

As an aerial engineer-gunner he racked up more than 25 missions with his B-24 group. He was awarded at least one Air Medal the early part of this year.

Cal is a graduate of Eden Prairie, Minn., high school before his family moved to Arlington Heights. His wife, Thelma, lives with his parents.

Chicago pastor to deliver hard punches at next Lions meeting

Rev. Adolph Bohn, pastor of Edgewater Presbyterian church will be guest speaker at the Lions Club meeting May 15. There will be some real punches in what he has to say, according to M. W. Prellberg, program chairman. Rev. Bohn's subject will be "Power" which Rev. Bohn has warned Mr. Prellberg is not always complimentary to humanity. In accepting the invitation to speak, Rev. Bohn said of his subject: "there is a clear evidence of it almost anywhere these days and unless it is controlled the very thing we develop and strive for in the many manifestations of power become the tools of civilization's destruction."

The speaker offered to choose a different subject if Mr. Prellberg thought the Lions would not be able to take such strong talk.

Brownout ends, racing begins

With announcement of V-E day came the word that the "brownout" had ended. Local officials were immediately notified by the Public Service Co. and passed the word along to the general public. The racing ban was also lifted and operators of race tracks began immediate plans for summer racing in the Chicago area. The lifting of the racing ban will not make any difference in Arlington Heights as the curb on transportation to races still stands and Arlington Park will again be closed for the season.

New phones not available for some time

"Recent reports concerning the partial lifting of restrictions on the manufacture of telephone instruments have given rise to false hopes on the part of people who are waiting for telephone service," Mr. Mason, manager for the Illinois Bell Telephone Company, said today. "To the extent that availability of materials and manpower permits, additional telephones will be manufactured, but there is a tremendous waiting list of people who want telephone service, some 1,800,000 of them throughout the country. The communication industry still is obligated to provide equipment to carry on the war and will continue to do so even with the defeat of Germany."

Mr. Mason said the important thing to remember is that the majority of these 1,800,000 people cannot get service because there are not enough switchboards and other central office equipment, as well as cable and other line facilities which are necessary to provide service.

"Accordingly," Mr. Mason added, "even if the company had adequate supplies of telephone instruments, which it does not, and cannot expect to have for some time, it would still be quite a while before service could be given to all who want it. The manufacture and installation of central office equipment, which has practically been at a standstill for civilian service during the war, is an intricate and time-consuming operation, much more so than the manufacture of telephone instruments.

"We appreciate the patience and understanding shown by those on the waiting list. We are doing our utmost to meet everyone's needs at the earliest possible moment."

Benjamin Electric seeks workers for permanent jobs

Benjamin Electric Co., of Des Plaines, has an expansion program that calls for 250 more employees. One hundred fifty of the positions are being reserved for former employees who are in war service. There are 100 permanent positions open today to new employees. These are essential jobs as long as the war in the Pacific lasts, and the post-war expansion of the company means the jobs will be permanent.

Supervised recreation this summer

Eleanor Kestin of high school will be in charge

Organized recreational activities will be conducted in Recreation Park this summer for a nine week period, June 11, through August 10. The park board has engaged Miss Eleanor Kestin, girls physical education instructor at the local high school, as director of the activities.

The general plan is to provide supervised play programs in the park for boys and girls during the mornings. In the afternoon the director will be in the swimming pool area to give instructions and supervise pool activities.

Detailed plans of the activities to be conducted mornings and afternoons will be arranged by Miss Kestin. Besides her experience in physical education, she has conducted supervised play ground activities in Evanston for ten years. Her experience in this type of work will make it possible to provide the type of program many local organizations are interested in seeing promoted for the children.

Since there has been a movement started by a number of local organizations interested in seeing supervised playground activities carried on this summer, the park board expresses their hope that the organizations will cooperate with the director to promote the idea in the community and make it a successful undertaking.

A number of large pieces of playground equipment have been ordered for the park, consisting of swings, slide and climbing apparatus. This equipment is expected to be erected in about a month.

Another softball field including a back stop that was built by the Den Dads has been installed in the southwest corner of the ball field. To the Den Dads the public owes a vote of thanks.

Arlington high senior play May 12

"Don't Take My Penny", a rousing three-act comedy by Anne Coulter Martens, will be presented by the Senior Class at the Arlington Heights Township High School, Saturday, May 12, at 8:15 p. m.

Kerry thinks that a woman's place is on the tennis courts. But Penny is practically convinced she is destined for Hollywood. Her presentation of the sleep walking scene from Macbeth is interesting even if it is somewhat novel. Lydia, as the flighty mother, who is more interested in giving other people lectures and advice about their home life than she is concerned about her own family, struggles through to a rude awakening.

The complications arising from dual characterizations provide an interesting and amusing glimpse into the private life of the Pringle family.

Miss Dorrine Petersen, speech teacher at the high school, is the director of the play.

Arlington war plant needs more workers

"V-E day means extra work for us. Since our product is needed for moving war materials from the European Theater of Operations to the South Pacific, I could certainly use 30 women and 2 men to help me out," said Ray Chmelik, manager of the Arlington Packaging Company on V-E day.

This Arlington Heights company has been engaged for the last war years in packing, in paper bags, a dehydrating mineral which prevents army and navy equipment from rusting and corroding.

With Germany defeated, vast quantites of war materials must be shipped to the South Pacific. The same guns and planes which blasted Germany into submission, will be used to bring the Sons of the Rising Sun to their knees. "I have a signal corps deadline to coincide with a convoy of strategic materials in the very near future," continued Mr. Chmelik, "and I can offer work to any loyal, patriotic women desiring to help. The work is pleasant and light, the pay is good, and they can practically set their own hours."

After the fine work that Mr. Chmelik and his company have done, the Herald feels sure that the people of this community will respond to help put over this final effort to bring peace to the entire world. The Arlington Packaging Company is located at 111 E. Davis st., and their phone number is Arlington Heights 1320.

BUY BONDS FOR PACIFIC VICTORY.

Arlington Heights quota is $140,000

Check your calendar. Mark the date of Monday, May 14. On that day, the Seventh War Loan Drive gets under way throughout the nation. In every city, village and town, in every rural area, community War Finance Committees are busy this week with last minute details, preparatory to what they hope will be a fast start on an obviously tremendous undertaking. The objective will be to meet the Government's announced request for War Bond Sales reaching the high total of fourteen billion dollars.

Many of us may wonder what necessitates at this time a War Loan Drive of the immense proportions of the "Mighty Seventh". The remaining remnants of the Nazi and Fascist combat forces in Italy have surrendered. Resistance in Germany has crumbled. Japan alone remains BUT the Treasury Department wishes to remind us all, as we read the news of victory in Europe, that the Battle of Japan has really only just begun, that the greatest single obstacle to the crushing of Japan is distance. Overpowering equipment, more of everything, will be needed. Great forces of fighting men—freshly outfitted and superably equipped —will have to be moved halfway round the world and supplied day-in, day-out by hundreds of ships now building. Dollars, and lots of them, are urgently needed now.

As in the Sixth Drive, emphasis in the Seventh is on sales to individuals, but more so. Americans as individuals are taking on their largest quota to date, seven billion dollars including four billions in Series E Bonds alone. Banks and other corporations will be asked to match this total and buy another seven billions, thereby accounting for the full fourteen billion sales goal. The drive will end officially on June 30.

The local War Finance Committee reports that Arlington Heights has been assigned a quota of $140,000. This is an increase of $40,000 over our quota in the Sixth Drive. We are asked to consider only sales to individuals as applicable to the meeting of our quota, although the Committee will of course welcome all classes of buyers.

The drive locally is organized on a house to house, store to store canvass . One of your patriotic neighbors, a Victory Volunteer, will call on you. Your Committee urges that you welcome him and subscribe to the very limit of your ability. As before, actual purchases may be made at the Arlington Heights National Bank, the local post Office or at Krause and Kehe's.

Save for your country—save for yourself, and buy your War Bonds in Arlington Heights.

War loan posters to be shown at the Arlington

Dear Neighbor:

Monday, May 14th, marks the official opening of the 7th War Loan Drive. The house-to-house canvass will begin all over the country. When your neighbor rings your door bell, won't you give him a pleasant welcome? It will make his job easier, and help to get the canvass done quickly.

Our youngsters were busy last week, finishing up their posters, and now that they're all done, I want you to know the names of the boys and girls whose posters were selected.

From the Arlington Heights public school: Dawn Niemeyer, Raymond Bauer, Norman Ashcraft, Jeannine Burnier, Harold Dotts, Verdell Duenn, Janice Hackbarth, Taylor Lewis, Don Lynn, Ila Miller, Paul Mueller, Elizabeth Nichols, Jean Wartenberg, and Elroy Wilke.

From St. James Catholic school: Paul Lyon, Edward Kostka, Rosemary Clark, Geraldine Baumann, Jane Froembgen, Audrey Goyke, Jacqueline Groh, Leo Herbst, Peter Herbst, Jack Klowsky, Jane Osborn, Joan Marie Randag, Mary Jane Schuller, and Donald Weidner.

From St. Peter's Lutheran school: Orville Schaeffer, Dorothy Heidorn, June Rindlisbacher, Patsy Campbell, Patsy Engelking, August L. Krause, Lois Jean Kroeber, Ronald Obermann, Edgar Pfingsten, Margaret Reidenitz, Gertrude Schaller, John Schroeder, Jeanine Sheikop, Delores Wilke.

From Arlington Heights Township High School: Patricia Kule, Mt. Prospect; Gunhild Nordin, Prospect Heights; Carla Bloecker, Douglas Schimmel, Ray Wilke, Arlington Heights; Lois Budlong, Betty Price and Dolores Worley, Mt. Prospect.

These posters will be used in the windows of our business houses to publicize the drive. And so that you'll see them all, the Women's Division of our local committee, headed by Mrs. Kenneth W. Kennedy, will move the posters around each week.

A number of posters, suitable for reproduction, will appear in the Arlington Heights Herald each week during the drive.

And this is not all—to further honor our talented school children, Donald Knapp, manager of the Arlington Theater, is making slides of all the posters selected by the judges, and will honor one school each week beginning Friday, May 18, by showing their posters on the screen.

The 7th War Loan Committee sincerely appreciates the efforts and hard work of all of the children who entered the poster project, and desires to thank them, and their teachers, too, for their long hours of extra work. Mrs. Collard and her poster committee, together with the judges, Mrs. N. R. Schwartz and Harry Freyermuth of Arlington Heights and Herbert Chidley of Palatine, did a grand job, and the Committee thanks them also. I'm sure all you good neighbors will be interested in seeing these posters in the paper and at the movies, and you'll be amazed at the excellence of their thought and presentation.

Next week we'll know all about the editorial contest and the results of the judging. Something doing every minute!

Of course, the prime object of the 7th War Loan Committee is to promote the sale of war bonds, and now that our posters and editorials, newspaper and movie publicity, is ready, our canvassers and their captains are ready to go to work. Monday, May 14th. THE TIME IS NOW. Let's make it the biggest gusher of them all.

Your Neighbor.

Pain tells you
by C. W. LUSSMAN
of Sieburg Pharmacy

People shun pain, claiming it their greatest enemy, when in reality it is often a great friend.

Pain warns of physical disorders, sometimes trifling, often serious, which might develop dangerously had not pain given its warning.

But you need not wait on pain nor suffer its torments. A regular physical checkup by your doctor will prevent many painful experiences and ward off serious foes.

Do not use drugs except upon your doctor's advice, and obtain them then only from a reliable druggist.

It Happened Here

The woods are hanging all their leafy banners out, there is an urgency in the breeze, the sound of a swift runner bearing a message for us who wait. Victory? Peace? The triumph of righteousness? Thoreau writes in "Walden": "I never fastened my door night or day, tho I was to be absent several days . . . and yet my house was more respected than if it had been surrounded by a file of soldiers. . . . Yet the many people of every class came this way to the pond, I suffered no serious inconvenience from these sources and I never missed anything but one small book, a volume of Homer, which was perhaps improperly gilded. I am convinced that if all men were to live simply as I then did, thieving and robbery would be unknown. These take place only in communities where some have got more than is sufficient while others have not enough." And then, quite neatly, he quotes from this same Homer:

"Nor wars did men molest,
When only beechen bowls were in request."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Everlasting Punishment" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 6.

The Golden Text was, "Have I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die? saith the Lord God: and not that he should return from his ways, and live?" (Ezekiel 18: 23).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you . . . Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts, as in a day of slaughter . . . Grudge not one against another, brethren, lest ye be condemned; behold, the judge standeth before the door . . . Behold, we count them happy which endure. Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have seen the end of the Lord, that the Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy" (James 5: 1, 5, 9, 11).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The indulgence of evil motives and aims makes any man, who is above the lowest type of manhood, a hopeless sufferer. Christian Science commands man to master the propensities,—to hold hatred in abeyance with kindness, to conquer lust with chastity, revenge with charity, and to overcome deceit with honesty. Choke these errors in their early stages, if you would not cherish an army of conspirators against health, happiness and success . . . The good man finally can overcome his fear of sin. This is sin's necessity,—to destroy itself. Immortal man demonstrates the government of God, good, in which is no power to sin" (p. 405).

Proclamation

Recognizing that protection of life, limb and property is the most fundamental responsibility of government and that the School Safety Patrols in this wartime year are rendering invaluable civic service in protecting school children from the hazards of heavy war-induced traffic, thereby helping our government greatly in this basic duty and thus enriching the community, I publicly proclaim Saturday, May 12, 1945, to be SCHOOL SAFETY PATROL DAY.

On behalf of the government and citizenry of this community, I commend these faithful volunteer civilian defenders. I urge all citizens to pause and pay due tribute to the boys and girls who are enrolled in schol safety patrols and to give full cooperation in this valuable traffic safety effort. Only through public cooperation can the patrols be instrumental in saving lives and preventing accidents.

The patrols are rendering distinguished service in protecting our citizens of tomorrow from the traffic hazards of today.

Signed,
ALBERT W. GOEDKE.

Pain tells you

by C. W. LUSSMAN of Sieburg Pharmacy

People shun pain, claiming it their greatest enemy, when in reality it is often a great friend.

Pain warns of physical disorders, sometimes trifling, often serious, which might develop dangerously had not pain given its warning.

But you need not wait on pain nor suffer its torments. A regular physical checkup by your doctor will prevent many painful experiences and ward off serious foes.

Do not use drugs except upon your doctor's advice, and obtain them then only from a reliable druggist.

EDUCATION

We should not ask who is the most learned, but who is the best learned.

—Montaigne.

The great standard of literature as to purity and exactness of style, is the Bible.

—Blair.

The hardest way of learning is that of easy reading; but a great book that comes from a great thinker is a ship of thought, deep freighted with truth and beauty.

—Theodore Parker.

The reason we constantly discover new truth in Shakespeare is that his complete understanding of the particular includes the universal.

—Austin O'Malley.

Let us learn of the real and eternal, and prepare for the reign of Spirit, the kingdom of heaven,—the reign and rule of universal harmony, which cannot be lost nor remain forever unseen.

About Our Schools

On Monday, April 30th, people in this community interested in the progress of education received the following letter. If you want to keep informed about schools and school legislation call 596 and ask to be put on the mailing list.

Dear Friend:

This is the third letter from the Legislative Committee of the Arlington Heights P. T. A. to citizens interested in educational legislation. May we urge you to read the following carefully and to write someone about your opinions. Remember—our legislators need to know what we are thinking!!! All letters to state officials may be addressed to Springfield.

1. The Junior College Bill, S. 153, by Peters and Van Hooser, was unanimously recommended by the Senate Education Committee to pass. This bill authorizes the levy of a tax by school districts to pay the tuition of pupils attending a licensed junior college conducted by a school district. It also provides for an appropriation of $400,000 by the State to be distributed to districts maintaining junior colleges, on the basis of the number of junior college students. We are urged to support this bill now. This would mean, in particular, writing our Senator, Mr. Bidwell, about it.

The Gateway Amendment. We are informed that House Joint Resolution No. 31, by Hunter and Edwards, the Gateway Amendment proposal, needs local support now. The Gateway approach will make sensible amendment of our constitution possible. Under the present amendment provision of the constitution, if one fails to vote on an amendment which is being considered at a particular election, this becomes in effect a vote against the amendment. The Gateway Amendment would do away with that difficulty.

A third measure deserving immediate state-wide support is House Bill No. 223. This bill would center the prosecution of child labor violation cases in the office of the state's attorney. At present school people and others are at a loss to know what is the prosecuting agency.

Teacher Retirement Bills. The main retirement bill, H. 441, by Representatives O'Neill and Powell, provides, in addition to the minimum retirement allowance of $400 at fifty after 25 years of teaching experience, $600 as a minimum at sixty after 30 years of teaching, and also increases the minimum in disability allowances from $200 per year to $400 per year.

Teachers' pensions are notoriously low as compared with pensions of other public employees. This bill is now on third reading in the House and it would help if you would write your representatives in Springfield if you believe that teachers' retirement minimums should be raised. A good retirement system is one thing which would attract good people into a profession in which recruiting is now needed.

Infant daughter of air corps lieutenant is christened

The infant daughter of Lt. and Mrs. Robert E. O'Hagan, Arlington Heights, was christened Mavourneen Mary on Sunday, May 6, at St. James Catholic church. The Rev. Father Alois Stier performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Burke of Chicago were the godparents. Just Around the Corner

Dear Jane:

Didn't you love the reasons Elly gave for not wanting to move away from Arlington Heights? I think they are the nicest tributes to a town I have ever read.

"Life comes in pearl moments, strung on a dull grey thread," Elly writes, and "it has seemed to me that in Arlington Heights the strand has been long and full and glowing."

It is my belief that if the "strand" has been thus for Elly, it is because she has done her part to help make it so. As usual, I am reminded of a little verse. It was written by B. L. Bruce and is called:

The Abundant Life

The benefits that prove of truest worth
Of all the things we hold upon this earth,
Are not on us conferred. And we have learned
That only is our own which we have earned
Thru trying toil, and, it may be thru tears,
And woven into life thru passing years.
How often in our zeal would we bestow
The wealth of every blessing that we know
On those we love the best; and thus deprive
Them of a fruitful goal for which to strive,
Bright dreams, fair purposes, and plans compose
A capital investment wherein lies
A destiny enriched with vastly more
Than any recompense in earthly store.
To seek the gems in life's exhaustless mine
Is man's high privilege and right divine.

Jane, have you been wondering what annuals to plant this year? Here is a list that I came across in a garden diary I faithfully kept day by day back in 1942. This particular group will prosper best if the seeds are sown directly where the plants are to bloom. This does away with transplanting — a boon in wartime, don't you agree? Incidently, these flowers seem to be unusually gregarious in that they like close companionship and will do better if the plants are NOT thinned. So, I suggest planting in groups of some consequence. Calliopsis and larkspur for the rear of the flower bed; cornflowers, baby's-breath and Shirley poppies, all lower in height towards the front, and candytuft for an edging.

Here's a problem for that husband of mine to solve tonight when he reaches our domain. In the farthest corner from the entrance to the chicken house lies a nest of straw filled with duck and chicken eggs. Not one but THREE hens are struggling to settle themselves on the nest. One is a large white muscovy duck. Poor thing, she appears to be completely frustrated. She is the most defiant of the three prospective mothers as I approach the nest. She's got a hiss that made me back off into the opposite corner in a hurry, and I wouldn't try to get her away from those precious eggs for love or money. Not me!

After all the years of loving and caring for old copper, I had to wait until last week, when I had lunch with my old friend Wayvo Roberts in Palatine, to learn that the easiest and quickest way to clean copper or brass is to use a mixture of salt and vinegar. It works like a charm, Jane, in case you have never tried it.

With love, Mary.

Mildred Happ weds Henry Schneider

Mildred Happ, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Happ of Northbrook, was united in marriage Saturday to Henry Schneider, son of Mrs. Anna Schneider of Wilmette. Ten o'clock Nuptial Mass was held at St. Norbert church with Rev. C. Haeffner performing the ceremony.

The bride was given away by her father, and wore a gown of white satin with long train of net. She carried white roses. Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Florence, who wore pink marquisette and carried pink roses. Bridesmaids, Louise Happ and Dorothy Schneider, wore blue marquisette and carried pink roses.

Infant daughter of air corps lieutenant is christened

The infant daughter of Lt. and Mrs. Robert E. O'Hagan, Arlington Heights, was christened Mavourneen Mary on Sunday, May 6, at St. James Catholic church. The Rev. Father Alois Stier performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Burke of Chicago were the godparents. After the baptism dinner was served to 21 relatives and friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Hagan, the baby's paternal grandparents.

Lt. O'Hagan is a navigator in the air corps at Bermuda.

Just Around the Corner

Dear Jane:

Didn't you love the reasons Elly gave for not wanting to move away from Arlington Heights? I think they are the nicest tributes to a town I have ever read.

"Life comes in pearl moments, strung on a dull grey thread," Elly writes, and "it has seemed to me that in Arlington Heights the strand has been long and full and glowing."

It is my belief that if the "strand" has been thus for Elly, it is because she has done her part to help make it so. As usual, I am reminded of a little verse. It was written by B. L. Bruce and is called:

The Abundant Life

The benefits that prove of truest worth
Of all the things we hold upon this earth,
Are not on us conferred. And we have learned
That only is our own which we have earned
Thru trying toil, and, it may be thru tears,
And woven into life thru passing years.
How often in our zeal would we bestow
The wealth of every blessing that we know
On those we love the best; and thus deprive
Them of a fruitful goal for which to strive,
Bright dreams, fair purposes, and plans compose
A capital investment wherein lies
A destiny enriched with vastly more
Than any recompense in earthly store.
To seek the gems in life's exhaustless mine
Is man's high privilege and right divine.

Jane, have you been wondering what annuals to plant this year? Here is a list that I came across in a garden diary I faithfully kept day by day back in 1942. This particular group will prosper best if the seeds are sown directly where the plants are to bloom. This does away with transplanting — a boon in wartime, don't you agree? Incidently, these flowers seem to be unusually gregarious in that they like close companionship and will do better if the plants are NOT thinned. So, I suggest planting in groups of some consequence. Calliopsis and larkspur for the rear of the flower bed; cornflowers, baby's-breath and Shirley poppies, all lower in height towards the front, and candytuft for an edging.

Here's a problem for that husband of mine to solve tonight when he reaches our domain. In the farthest corner from the entrance to the chicken house lies a nest of straw filled with duck and chicken eggs. Not one but THREE hens are struggling to settle themselves on the nest. One is a large white muscovy duck. Poor thing, she appears to be completely frustrated. She is the most defiant of the three prospective mothers as I approach the nest. She's got a hiss that made me back off into the opposite corner in a hurry, and I wouldn't try to get her away from those precious eggs for love or money. Not me!

After all the years of loving and caring for old copper, I had to wait until last week, when I had lunch with my old friend Wayvo Roberts in Palatine, to learn that the easiest and quickest way to clean copper or brass is to use a mixture of salt and vinegar. It works like a charm, Jane, in case you have never tried it.

With love, Mary.

Vegetables

With carloads upon carloads of crisp, new green cabbage now rolling into local markets from southern states, homemakers are urged by the War Food Administration to keep this plentiful vegetable at the top of marketing lists. Cabbage has become well known as a good source of food values, boasting of vitamin A, B1, and C, and also the minerals iron and calcium. While high in protective values, cabbage is low in calories, and that should interest women who find at this time that last year's spring frocks are a little on the snug side.

Other foods that will be in rather liberal supply through May include the various cereals, such as macaroni and spaghetti, soya flour, grits, and flakes, oatmeal and wheat flour and bread. Butter is a scarce item, so homemakers might well use more apple butter, citrus marmalade, jellies, and grape, plum, and fig jams as spreads for bread. Dry mix soups and dry edible peas are other plentiful items. Onions, oranges, and eggs are expected to be in adequate supply throughout the Midwest area during the month.

May ushers in home canning season. Homegrown rhubarb is in good supply at present, and will be available during the next few weeks, and this usually offers the first good value of the season for home canning. Strawberry supplies for the country as a whole are not expected to be large, as only about sixty percent of the usual acreage was planted. But some are, and will be, available, though at rather high cost, to put up a few jars of jam, which is comparatively economical since it can be made from the sound, but riper, less perfectly shaped and less uniformly sized berries. Strawberries from Tennessee, Illinois, and Michigan are generally heaviest in May. If a pressure cooker is available, and asparagus can be obtained when it is very fresh, this makes a third item which can be put up during the month.

For fresh use, green onions, escarole, endive, mustard, turnip tops, beets, and perhaps green peas will appeal to the homemaker on a moderate budget this week. Celery is in rather liberal supply, but the best quality is still rather high. Snap beans, lettuce, carrots, spinach, eggplant, and oranges and grapefruit are all pretty much at ceiling levels, with supplies of these rather light except on the fruits.

Ancient mounds along the banks of the Mississippi river were manufactured by the Indians as retreats during flood seasons.

With more than 350 million meals being served weekly by public feeding establishments, the observance of National Restaurant Week, May 7 to 13, gains new significance, according to the American Institute of Laundering. The serving of this many meals requires approximately 85 million tablecloths and 170 million napkins weekly. When mulitplied by the number of weeks in the year, the tablecloths and napkins add up to a vast milky way of napery.

Suggests check of machinery to avoid accidents

Farming was the world's most dangerous occupation in 1944, and the record for 1945 may be even worse, Farm Advisor C. A. Hughes declared this week.

"Older men, more women, more youngsters and more green hands will be used this year than ever before; and longer hours and older machinery will multiply the opportunity for accidents," he said. "Machinery is probably the farm's danger spot No. 1."

The farm adviser recommended that a thorough check of machinery be made before field work starts. Defective hitches, seats, clutches, wheels, brakes, steering and unguarded revolving parts, such as gears, chains and shafts, deserve special attention. He also emphasizes that poorly conditioned machinery is irritating and fatiguing to the operator and that fatigue usually increases accidents.

The accident toll on the nation's farms and ranches for last year was reported at 20,000 dead and 2,000,000 injured, with an estimated money loss of a billion dollars.

Announce schedule for Ravinia Park season

With a distinguished list of conductors and soloists, the Ravinia Festival will begin its tenth brilliant season with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening, June 30, it is announced by Percy B. Eckhart, chairman of the Ravinia Festival Association.

Six weeks of Symphony music is scheduled for the beautiful North Shore park, to be followed by one week of chamber music. Concerts will be given each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon.

The opening event of the summer season, Saturday evening, June 30, will be a gala performance and the only concert at which Desire Defauw, the Chicago Symphony's own conductor, will occupy the podium. He will have as soloists, Oscar Chausow, musician third class, U. S. Navy, prominent violinist and member of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, now on military leave; and Frank Miller, musician second class, who previous to entering the Navy was first 'cellist for Toscanini's NBC Symphony.

The six weeks' schedule of guest conductors will get into full swing with the concert of Tuesday evening, July 3, when Artur Rodzinski, the New York Philharmonic Symphony's conductor, will take over the baton. He will conduct the concerts of July 3, 5, 7 and 8. There will be no soloist that week.

Erich Leinsdorf, conductor of the Cleveland Symphony, will come to Ravinia for its second Festival Week and his first appearance on the North Shore, beginning July 10 and including performances July 12, 14 and 15. Dorothy Maynor, noted Negro soprano, will be soloist the evenings of July 10 and 14.

George Szell, who several years ago achieved a place as a favorite Ravinia conductor, will return for his fifth season during the third week, beginning July 17. On that evening and on Saturday evening, July 21, Szell will have as soloist Jakob Gimpel, pianist, a newcomer to mid-west concert stage, but who already has gained critical acclaim in the East as one of the rising young musicians of the day.

Another newcomer to Ravinia will be Massimo Freccia, conductor of the New Orleans Symphony, and well known on the continent before he came to this country a few years ago from his native Italy. Freccia will conduct during the fourth week of Ravinia, beginning Tuesday evening, July 24. Soloist that week will be Erica Morini, noted Austrian violinist, whose appearances are scheduled for July 24 and July 28.

Leonard Bernstein, who created a sensation at his Ravinia debut last season, will return this summer for the fifth week of the Festival, which opens July 31. Soloist for that week has not yet been scheduled.

Pierre Monteux, San Francisco's distinguished conductor, and outstanding modern French conductor will bring the symphonc season to its conclusion, occupying the podium during the sixth week. Monteux, who will be making his fifth annual visit to the North Shore music festival, is not only one of the country's most notable conductors but an overwhelming favorite of Ravinia audiences.

For the final week of music at Ravinia, the Pro Arte quartet, which inaugurated the post-season week of chamber music at Ravinia in 1940, will return for four concerts.

In 1892 she was married to Julius Ratieke in Chicago where they resided until 1901. Mr. Ratieke passed away April 29, 1901. In 1906 she was united in marriage at Wheeling to Heinrich Grewe, who preceeded her in death October 14, 1943.

Vegetables

With carloads upon carloads of crisp, new green cabbage now rolling into local markets from southern states, homemakers are urged by the War Food Administration to keep this plentiful vegetable at the top of marketing lists. Cabbage has become well known as a good source of food values, boasting of vitamin A, B1, and C, and also the minerals iron and calcium. While high in protective values, cabbage is low in calories, and that should interest women who find at this time that last year's spring frocks are a little on the snug side.

Other foods that will be in rather liberal supply through May include the various cereals, such as macaroni and spaghetti, soya flour, grits, and flakes, oatmeal and wheat flour and bread. Butter is a scarce item, so homemakers might well use more apple butter, citrus marmalade, jellies, and grape, plum, and fig jams as spreads for bread. Dry mix soups and dry edible peas are other plentiful items. Onions, oranges, and eggs are expected to be in adequate supply throughout the Midwest area during the month.

May ushers in home canning season. Homegrown rhubarb is in good supply at present, and will be available during the next few weeks, and this usually offers the first good value of the season for home canning. Strawberry supplies for the country as a whole are not expected to be large, as only about sixty percent of the usual acreage was planted. But some are, and will be, available, though at rather high cost, to put up a few jars of jam, which is comparatively economical since it can be made from the sound, but riper, less perfectly shaped and less uniformly sized berries. Strawberries from Tennessee, Illinois, and Michigan are generally heaviest in May. If a pressure cooker is available, and asparagus can be obtained when it is very fresh, this makes a third item which can be put up during the month.

For fresh use, green onions, escarole, endive, mustard, turnip tops, beets, and perhaps green peas will appeal to the homemaker on a moderate budget this week. Celery is in rather liberal supply, but the best quality is still rather high. Snap beans, lettuce, carrots, spinach, eggplant, and oranges and grapefruit are all pretty much at ceiling levels, with supplies of these rather light except on the fruits.

With more than 350 million meals being served weekly by public feeding establishments, the observance of National Restaurant Week, May 7 to 13, gains new significance, according to the American Institute of Laundering. The serving of this many meals requires approximately 85 million tablecloths and 170 million napkins weekly. When mulitplied by the number of weeks in the year, the tablecloths and napkins add up to a vast milky way of napery.

513th Paratroop

Some died in shroud lines on bloody 'Isle'

Received this week was a reprint of the March 25 Liege edition of Stars and Stripes. The story tells of the 513th Parachute Infantry Regiment, of which Sgt. Leonard Hartman of Palatine is a member.

American paratroopers today drove eastward from the island of bloody ground they took and held to spearhead the Allied thrust beyond the Rhine.

Past wrecked gliders, past the black skeletons of fire-razed transport planes, and away from the German field mottled by their colored chutes, these remnants of U. S. and British paratroops moved to strike at enemy forces routed in yesterday's airborne attack.

Paratroopers were back fighting as doughfeet but even if they should stay earthbound they will always be the guys who jumped across the Rhine and opened the road to Berlin—and did it the hard way.

The C46 was burning when we hooked up and shoved for the door. Bob Reeder and the rest of the carrier's crew never said a word. They stayed in there to keep us level and we went over the side into a weird sky of bursting flak, lazy tracers and colored silk.

Flak hit one man in the air and he blew up.

Col. Jim Coutts, the Philadelphia West Pointer, slipped out of his harness, walked through burp-gun fire and began to attack before he had a battalion, let alone his 513th Parachute Regt. of the 17th AB Div.

Lt. Col. Ward Ryan another West Pointer from Ft. Atkinson, Wis., and the rest of our stick landed squarely in the middle of a German artillery CP. Some of the stick died where it hit.

Nazi shot from air

It was difficult to be sure, but the 513th Paratrooper Pfc. Lynn Vaughn, of Georgetown, probably took the first two prisoners. He landed in a tree, slid down, shot one Jerry. The other two quit. Perhaps the first man to kill a German was Sgt. Curtis Gadd, of Cleveland, who unslung his M1 in the air and splattered a Nazi soldier who was beating his horse to a gallop across the field.

Mostly, the paratroopers figured the first's didn't matter.

South of us Col. Edson Raff, who took the first American troopers into a combat drop in Africa, was on the ground with his 507th Regt. and clearing the way to a link-up with British who had crossed the Rhine in darkness.

Cost one man in ten

As Col. Coutts and the main force fought southward, the regimental executive officer started out from the Nazi-CP with what got to be known after seven hours of fighting as 'Task Force Ryan". TF Ryan never had more than 40 men including medics but it took more than 100 prisoners.

The entire 513th Regt., from 1015 when it hit until nightfall, took more than 1,100 prisoners. With enemy killed and wounded, that figured out to more than the regiment's strength.

The cost was one man out of every ten.

Side by side with the paratroopers fought the glider pilots who wheeled their craft down to the fields as the troopers started shooting.

Madder than hell

FO Billy Hill, a gliderman from Brewster, Ala., grabbed a tommygun and tacked on to Task Force Ryan, "madder than hell because a mortar busted that lovely old glider after I got it down right."

Curtiss Watters, of Cape Girardeau, Mo., organized the glider pilots of the 441st and 442nd groups into combat teams and took on German artillerymen. Some crews of burned C46s helped.

You'd have a hell of a time telling the 513th parachuters that the air corps isn't all man. Everybody fought.

Jerry was scared but sometimes he fought like a guy defending his home. Then a lot of brave men died. A lot of brave men lived, too.

You'll go from one end to the other of the island in the middle of the German army that the paratroopers took and held and there'll never be a braver man than old Doc Moir.

Medic is an inspiration

Doc Moir, a major, comes from Medford, Wis. He's the regimental surgeon. It's against the rules to shoot at medics but a lot of them got shot yesterday.

But from the moment he went out of a burning C46, Doc Moir hurt and making the Schmeisser fire popped loudest, walking among the mortar hurt and make it easier for those he couldn't help.

Probably he didn't plan it that way but what Doc Moir was when the chips were down made the paratroopers better fighting men. The guys who charged German emplacements with gun butts and knives figure Doc Moir was a pretty brave guy.

Freed by Yanks

Pvt. Pete Bodor of Arlington Heights is now "returned to military control" according to word received Tuesday morning. Pete was reported missing December 17 in Belgium, and just three weeks ago was proclaimed a prisoner of the Nazis.

This week's word means he has been freed, supposedly by advancing Yank troops. War department wire stated he was returned to military control April 17.

The Bodor family had previously received a letter from Pete last week stating he was in France. He is believed to be on his way home. W. Wing street, Arlington Heights, and he has reported at a Coast Guard base in that area.

More local men have been freed by advancing Allied armies in Europe, releasing these men from prison camps. Two were listed Friday from the Moosburg encampment. They are:

Cpl. Lester Rotermund of Addison.

2nd Lt. G. G. Fry of Bensenville.

Palau

From the Palau islands comes word of Bill Schwankoff of Palatine. Bill is with the ambulance corps and serves at a medical receiving station.

"I finally received the Palatine paper. I received three of them last week. The dates of them were January 12th, 19th and 26th. Then today I received another one. It was dated February 2nd. It sure seemed good to get the paper again, especially when I am way down here and reading material is scarce.

"Gee it sure seems good to get ahold of some old copies of the Life magazine or Look or the Saturday Evening Post. Our chaplain or the Post Exchange gets them in every so often and they distribute so many to each unit.

"I was surprised the other day. I got a telephone call from our headquarters that a fellow from my home town was on his way to see me. His name is Jack Domek. He is stationed here now. He has been down to Saipan and Guam and some more islands around the Pacific.

"I was glad to see him. He has only been in the service since last February of '44. He is a brother of Jim Luerssen's wife. I used to go to school with him. We talked over old times.

"He got the hometown paper and saw my name in it and this APO number where I am stationed now. He went to the base post office and found out what unit I was in and he looked me up.

"I will be a great home decorator when I get back home. We got a new place for our oil station and fixed it up inside. We used a gasoline blow torch and burnished all the woodwork. That really makes it look swell. Burning the wood that way really brings out the grain in the wood, especially on plywood.

"I can't complain too much on the mail service. Of course V-mail will travel slower than regular Air Mail because V-mail has to be processed first. It takes about twelve days for a V-mail to reach me. I also received an Air Mail letter from a girl in Park Ridge and that letter was post marked the 16th of April. I got it the 23rd."

His address is Cpl. William J. Schwankoff, 36028059, APO 265, % Postmaster, San Francisco, Calif.

Sea Bee Howard Graf EM2c of Wheeling is stationed somewhere on Palau in a climate quite different from the year he spent in the Aleutians. Bud expresses his appreciation of messages from friends at home.

Pacific

Now out in the Pacific is Bill Weber of Arlington Heights. He serves aboard a submarine. His address is QM3c William F. Weber, % FPO, San Francisco, Calif. (Ed.: name of boat divulged in answer to any letters).

RM3 Wilbert Zinkel of Mt. Prospect arrived home April 28 from the South Pacific. He has just been released from a hospital in Hawaii and will be home most of this month.

Serves aboard supply ship in Pacific

Serving aboard a supply ship, though in the army, is the job of Ronald Wessel of Palatine. Ronald has seen much of the Pacific on his trips to and from American bases.

On one trip recently he met Norman Beckman, also of Palatine, in the Netherlands East Indies. They spent a lot of time talking about Palatine, for they had known each other before going into service. The two men posed for the above picture, with Norman on the left.

Ronald has since gone up to the Philippines, and is now back in Australia waiting for another load. He studied refrigeration both in the States and overseas. Thus it is believed he is following that profession in the service.

Norman has also moved to the Philippines, and is staying there at present. According to him food in the Netherlands Indies was terrible, but it has improved tremendously in the Philippines. Norm lost a lot of weight in the Indies because of both the weather and the food.

Ronald's address is Pfc. Ronald Wessel, 36665382, APO 503, % PM, San Francisco, Calif.

Pacific

A request that he be given duty in the North Pacific has been granted Richard Goedke, aerographer's mate, second class son of Mr.

and Mrs. Albert W. Goedke, 220 land and four months aboard a similar ship in the Caribbean. He has been in the Coast Guard 25 months.

"I've tried them both and I much prefer the northern climates instead of those down south," Goedke said in explaining his request for Alaskan duty.

Prior to his new assignment he spent 10 months aboard a weather patrol ship operating out of Greenland.

He is a graduate of the Arlington Heights High school. A brother, S-Sgt. Robt. Goedke, is with the army signal corps in France.

Okinawa

Ladislar Balek, 29, coxswain, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Balek, live at State and Palatine rd., Arlington Heights, had a grandstand seat on his ship from which to view the invasion of Okinawa.

This hard-hitting battle ship, while under threat of air attack, moved up within 3,000 yards of the shore, cruising slowly back and forth and pulverizing the beach targets at point-blank range. The crew could clearly see the explosions from the ship's shells as her guns smashed pillboxes, gun emplacements, warehouses and trench fortifications.

The ship's anti-aircraft gunners fought off deadly air assaults during the bombardment period, and on one occasion only skillful maneuvering of the vessel by her commanding officer saved her from a torpedo which had been dropped.

At one time a Jap "Zeke" bomber, pursued by two U. S. Navy planes, came within range of the ship's 20-mm. and 40-mm. guns, and crew members of this ship and those of another close-by had the satisfaction of seeing the enemy crash into the sea. Another time, bombs from a Jap plane fell only 200 yards off the port bow.

By early afternoon of invasion day, the big ship's primary target area had been captured and she was free to lend her powerful support against other enemy held areas.

Sea Bee Harold Utpadel EM1c of Wheeling has been writing from Okinawa the past few weeks. Besides fighting the Japs the boys there have plenty of trouble with fleas, a tiny but pesky enemy.

Bill Godknecht arrived home Wednesday on a furlough from Pensacola, Florida.

513th Paratroop

Some died in shroud lines on bloody 'Isle'

Received this week was a reprint of the March 25 Liege edition of Stars and Stripes. The story tells of the 513th Parachute Infantry Regiment, of which Sgt. Leonard Hartman of Palatine is a member.

American paratroopers today drove eastward from the island of bloody ground they took and held to spearhead the Allied thrust beyond the Rhine.

Past wrecked gliders, past the black skeletons of fire-razed transport planes, and away from the German field mottled by their colored chutes, these remnants of U. S. and British paratroops moved to strike at enemy forces routed in yesterday's airborne attack.

Paratroopers were back fighting as doughfeet but even if they should stay earthbound they will always be the guys who jumped across the Rhine and opened the road to Berlin—and did it the hard way.

The C46 was burning when we hooked up and shoved for the door. Bob Reeder and the rest of the carrier's crew never said a word. They stayed in there to keep us level and we went over the side into a weird sky of bursting flak, lazy tracers and colored silk.

Flak hit one man in the air and he blew up.

Col. Jim Coutts, the Philadelphia West Pointer, slipped out of his harness, walked through burp-gun fire and began to attack before he had a battalion, let alone his 513th Parachute Regt. of the 17th AB Div.

Lt. Col. Ward Ryan another West Pointer from Ft. Atkinson, Wis., and the rest of our stick landed squarely in the middle of a German artillery CP. Some of the stick died where it hit.

It was difficult to be sure, but the 513th Paratrooper Pfc. Lynn Vaughn, of Georgetown, probably took the first two prisoners. He landed in a tree, slid down, shot one Jerry. The other two quit. Mac Says ....

A Comprehensive Review and Analysis of the Sports News of the Week

GERALD A. McELROY

Bad weather the past 10 days all but wiped out sports competition on the high school front. Baseball games were postponed and a number of track meets called off. Palatine and Antioch did get together Friday in spite of muddy jumping pits but otherwise the Palatine set up was O. K. by mi-afternoon. Antioch nosed out the Pirates in a close meet which makes the conference meet May 23 all the more interesting.

League rules aid Pirates

The conference meet plan in vogue for years which allows a boy to compete in only three events including relays will probably be quite an asset to Palatine in beating Antioch in the league meet. Palatine has numbers and Antioch quality. Jones, Good, Trieger, and Nelson might give Antioch the title if their competition was not restricted. Jones made over 20 points at Palatine Friday. However the Pirates have the all round strength to place two men in a majority of the events and with five places being awarded that is a tremendous advantage.

See three records broken in N. W. meet May 23

One record seems certain to go in the league meet as Good of Antioch broke the 880 mark easily Friday on a soft track. He is likely to also crack the league mile record of 4:57. Good ran the distance in 4:47 not so long ago. This would put a crimp in Palatine's plans with Vogt and Hapke strong in the distance events. However even if Good wins both the mile and 880 all the Palatine runners need to do is take a second and a fourth to exceed his point total and they should do that easily. Antioch is pretty sure to capture another record in the shot where Nielsen on numerous occasions has pushed the 12 pound pellet beyond 45 feet which would set a record. The rest of the marks look pretty safe with a very limited number of outstanding boys in the league track competition this year.

Baseball a percentage game

For several years we have at this stage of the season picked Arlington to go through the baseball season in the Northeast undefeated. Each year they have dropped one of their last few games. This year with Robinson and Brumm hurling superb ball it would appear they have the best chance for a perfect league season, but we are not going to jinx them by saying we think they will do it. After all baseball is a percentage game and undefeated seasons are more rare than in any other sport just as they are more common in football than any other.

Lack of spirit

For years Palatine has competed in the North Shore Invitational Frosh-Soph meet at Evanston which was held again last Saturday. This year entry fees were paid for five boys, several of whom had a good chance of winning ribbons in the tough suburban league competition. When the day come none of the Palatine boys would go for a variety of reasons, ranging from preference for working at a job to earn money to just plain lack of interest in going. Palatine's position as a track leader among schools of its size in this area is going to be taken by some one else in short order if this type of spirit becomes common among Palatine athletes.

Some observations about boys and track

A Palatine student told me a few days ago that it was his observation that a lot of students would not do anything for their school if there was a choice between that and earning money or awards of some kind for themselves. There are more students now we believe who are not loyal to school activities of which they are members and are not willing to give up personal gain for the good of the team or group. The war has made young people much more independent than usual because they have plenty of money to spend and can earn wages beyond that of the average man of the nineteen thirties.

However this is not true of all young people by any means any more than it is of their parents. The most striking evidence to us is the way certain boys and girls worked in the recent school waste paper drive at Palatine high. Fifty percent of the students put it over with a bang bringing in over 20 tons of paper and about 10 percent of the student body did the real work of bringing it in, preparing it for shipment, and loading the trucks to haul it away. Real character and loyalty was greatly in evidence among the boys who put over the paper drive just as it is shown among track athletes.

In track a boy stands on his own two feet without anyone to share responsibilities. It is all his. If he really has the character, will power, confidence, and the zest it takes to succeed he looks like real stuff winning third places. The boy who does not have what it takes flunks out of track or does not go out. It is easy to single out the real boys on a track squad. It develops the best characteristics in a lad and gives him a chance to really show what he is made of. That is why we like track so much.

Illinois fieldhouse proposed at Urbana

Walt Wessman of Oak Park, University of Illinois Field Secretary, is campaigning for support of a proposed field house at the University which would seat 20,000 for basketball and give the needed swimming facilities Illinois so sadly lacks. Certainly the prep sport fans of Illinois would like to see such a structure completed and thus end the uncertainty of getting tickets to the state basketball finals.

Fine records in Lake county held by N. W.-N. E. athletes

Tuesday the Lake County track meet was held at Highland Park. A glance at the meet records shows that one of the finest is held by a Barrington boy, Burneal Wollar, who broad jumped 21 feet 11½ inches in the 1943 meet. Libertyville's athletes of many years ago hold four fine marks. Burnett threw the college size discus 139 feet in 1932, Conway ran the 100 yard dash in :10.1 in 1929, Willard ran the mile in 4:41 in 1934, and Ray high jumped an even six feet in 1936. Then there is the great shot put mark of 51 feet 1 inch by Sharp of Grant in 1936 and the :15 flat mark in the high hurdles stepped by O'Hara of Lake Forest in 1939.

Returning veterans will bring sports boom

V-E day has arrived and an early return to civilian life is predicted for many of our fighting men. Every community should be planning for this return and one of the important factors in the readjustment of the returning veterans will be recreation. Opportunity for sports competition must be furnished and organized. We predict a great demand for community teams in baseball and basketball. Bowling is due for a great boom. We are glad to see that Palatine's bowling proprietor is planning expansion of the local facilities. Palatine needs community planning for a baseball field, hard surfaced tennis courts, and other sports facilities. We hope the proposed park project includes these things because we know that the returning boys will ask for them.

Efficient dairy management calls for keeping production records of all cows in the herd and feeding accordingly, with the heavy producers receiving more feed than others.

Antioch beats Palatine; dead heat decides meet

Palatine lost a dual meet with Antioch last Friday 58½ to 54½ with the relay ending in a dead heat to decide the meet in Antioch's favor. The result of the relay is still a question as there was a difference of opinion among those at the finish line as to whether Palatine won it or if it was a tie. However Palatine lost the meet because of the fact that several boys, depended on for points, did not show up to compete.

The best mark in the meet by a wide margin was the 2:08.6 in the half mile by Good of Antioch. This mark was better than the conference record. Rose's discus mark in excess of 123 feet for the Pirates and Nielsen's shot mark just under 45 feet for Antioch were the best field records.

Jones, Antioch's sophomore star, won four first places and tied for a second in a fifth event. In all he scored 21½ points. Good of Antioch was a double winner. Moody's 8½ points was high for Palatine.

Bensenville was in the meet against Antioch and was badly beaten but Olenicki salvaged two firsts and a second for 13 points. Ernsting lost both hurdle races.

Waukegan wins Lake county meet

Waukegan won the 20th annual Lake County track meet held at Highland Park Tuesday by scoring 60 1/5 points. Antioch scored 26½ to take fourth place a fraction behind Lake Forest. Good of Antioch was a double winner in the 880 and mile. He ran the mile in 4:49.1 and the half in 2:09.3 for excellent marks. Nielsen of Antioch won the discus and was second in the shot put. Young of Highland Park in the dashes and Jones of Waukegan in the hurdles were double winners. No records were broken.

Arlington girl signs to play pro baseball

Rudy Sanders, Rockola Manager, says he has signed Madlin Intravartolo of Arlington Heights, who he says was one of the best youngsters that he has seen play ball. She will probably be in center field as a regular player. She looks like another Lou Zullo, who last year joined the Rockola Girls and was one of the outstanding stars.

There is no doubt that Madlin will be a great fielder. She bats right handed and hits a hard, long ball. She is one of the youngest girls to play in the National Girls' Professional League.

The Rockolas play six evenings a week. The season starts May 18 at 4200 N. Central. Traveling games are played Friday and Sunday.

Madlin started playing baseball with the Karstens team when nine years old under the management of Charles O'Hagen.

Red Wings to open play this Sunday

The Arlington Redwings officially open the baseball season next Sunday afternoon in Recreation Park when they meet a mid-west league team known as the Semi-Swingers.

So far this spring there has been little chance to practice, but two practice games have been played. Last Sunday in a game featuring mid-season form pitching against batters who had trouble connecting with the curve balls, Oak Park defeated the Redwings 2-0.

From all indications the Redwing club should be about the same calibre as last season. A few more games will definitely show whether or not those players brought in to replace Kirchoff, Peeters and Brodnan will keep the team in the better class which is a tradition to be upheld.

There will not be any question about the Redwings pitching staff because Ladd and Schaefer have shown up very well so far. The catching will again be handled mainly by Mahn, who did most of the receiving last year. Other players holding over from last year are Simpson at first base, Helms and Griffith in the outfield, and Wahl on the infield. Plans are to bring Griffith into third base and to find another infielder for either short or second from the group of new men with the club.

Seek to provide air lines for 58 million annually

Projection of an "adequate" airline system for the United States equipped to handle 58 million passengers annually—15 times more than now—was the feature of an address by Arthur E. Raymond, vice president in charge of engineering of the Douglas Aircraft Company efore the Chicago Forum of the Air Monday.

Raymond pointed out that to accommodate the estimated potential air passengers the U. S. air line of the immediate postwar period will have to increase its route miles from 37,000 to 93,000. Most of the increase will be short haul operations.

It will, Raymond believes, be necessary to increase its "ground stations" from 227 to 1350, an average of 50 miles apart instead of the present 123.

More than four times the present number of transport planes will be needed. Three fourths of these will be the 24-passenger type, the rest a 50-passenger type, Raymond predicted.

The above estimate concerns only passenger transport in this country. It does not consider possible cargo needs nor those which will be necessary for foreign operation.

Under the projected adequate air lines system, passenger miles would increase almost 12 times, to 16 billion per year. Revenues should be 2.5 cents per mile instead of the present 4.5 cents, Raymond suggested. Under such rates the present $61,000,000 per year would increase to about $200,000,000.

MORTON GROVE

The will of Bernhard Rudd, who died in Chicago February 22, leaving a $125,000 estate, has been admitted to probate. He left his share in a business firm to his son George, gave another daughter real estate and canceled her notes to him, to daughter Grace Herbst, of Morton Grove, he cancelled her notes and gave his four children shares in the residue of his estate.

Mac Says ....

A Comprehensive Review and Analysis of the Sports News of the Week

GERALD A. McELROY

Bad weather the past 10 days all but wiped out sports competition on the high school front. Baseball games were postponed and a number of track meets called off. Palatine and Antioch did get together Friday in spite of muddy jumping pits but otherwise the Palatine set up was O. K. by mi-afternoon. Antioch nosed out the Pirates in a close meet which makes the conference meet May 23 all the more interesting.

League rules aid Pirates

The conference meet plan in vogue for years which allows a boy to compete in only three events including relays will probably be quite an asset to Palatine in beating Antioch in the league meet. Palatine has numbers and Antioch quality. Jones, Good, Trieger, and Nelson might give Antioch the title if their competition was not restricted. Jones made over 20 points at Palatine Friday. However the Pirates have the all round strength to place two men in a majority of the events and with five places being awarded that is a tremendous advantage.

See three records broken in N. W. meet May 23

One record seems certain to go in the league meet as Good of Antioch broke the 880 mark easily Friday on a soft track. He is likely to also crack the league mile record of 4:57. Good ran the distance in 4:47 not so long ago. This would put a crimp in Palatine's plans with Vogt and Hapke strong in the distance events. However even if Good wins both the mile and 880 all the Palatine runners need to do is take a second and a fourth to exceed his point total and they should do that easily. Antioch is pretty sure to capture another record in the shot where Nielsen on numerous occasions has pushed the 12 pound pellet beyond 45 feet which would set a record. The rest of the marks look pretty safe with a very limited number of outstanding boys in the league track competition this year.

Baseball a percentage game

For several years we have at this stage of the season picked Arlington to go through the baseball season in the Northeast undefeated. Each year they have dropped one of their last few games. This year with Robinson and Brumm hurling superb ball it would appear they have the best chance for a perfect league season, but we are not going to jinx them by saying we think they will do it. After all baseball is a percentage game and undefeated seasons are more rare than in any other sport just as they are more common in football than any other.

Lack of spirit

For years Palatine has competed in the North Shore Invitational Frosh-Soph meet at Evanston which was held again last Saturday. This year entry fees were paid for five boys, several of whom had a good chance of winning ribbons in the tough suburban league competition. When the day come none of the Palatine boys would go for a variety of reasons, ranging from preference for working at a job to earn money to just plain lack of interest in going. Palatine's position as a track leader among schools of its size in this area is going to be taken by some one else in short order if this type of spirit becomes common among Palatine athletes.

Some observations about boys and track

A Palatine student told me a few days ago that it was his observation that a lot of students would not do anything for their school if there was a choice between that and earning money or awards of some kind for themselves. There are more students now we believe who are not loyal to school activities of which they are members and are not willing to give up personal gain for the good of the team or group. The war has made young people much more independent than usual because they have plenty of money to spend and can earn wages beyond that of the average man of the nineteen thirties.

However this is not true of all young people by any means any more than it is of their parents. The most striking evidence to us is the way certain boys and girls worked in the recent school waste paper drive at Palatine high. Fifty percent of the students put it over with a bang bringing in over 20 tons of paper and about 10 percent of the student body did the real work of bringing it in, preparing it for shipment, and loading the trucks to haul it away. Real character and loyalty was greatly in evidence among the boys who put over the paper drive just as it is shown among track athletes.

In track a boy stands on his own two feet without anyone to share responsibilities. It is all his. If he really has the character, will power, confidence, and the zest it takes to succeed he looks like real stuff winning third places. The boy who does not have what it takes flunks out of track or does not go out. It is easy to single out the real boys on a track squad. It develops the best characteristics in a lad and gives him a chance to really show what he is made of. That is why we like track so much.

Illinois fieldhouse proposed at Urbana

Walt Wessman of Oak Park, University of Illinois Field Secretary, is campaigning for support of a proposed field house at the University which would seat 20,000 for basketball and give the needed swimming facilities Illinois so sadly lacks. Certainly the prep sport fans of Illinois would like to see such a structure completed and thus end the uncertainty of getting tickets to the state basketball finals.

Fine records in Lake county held by N. W.-N. E. athletes

Tuesday the Lake County track meet was held at Highland Park. A glance at the meet records shows that one of the finest is held by a Barrington boy, Burneal Wollar, who broad jumped 21 feet 11½ inches in the 1943 meet. Libertyville's athletes of many years ago hold four fine marks. Burnett threw the college size discus 139 feet in 1932, Conway ran the 100 yard dash in :10.1 in 1929, Willard ran the mile in 4:41 in 1934, and Ray high jumped an even six feet in 1936. Then there is the great shot put mark of 51 feet 1 inch by Sharp of Grant in 1936 and the :15 flat mark in the high hurdles stepped by O'Hara of Lake Forest in 1939.

Returning veterans will bring sports boom

V-E day has arrived and an early return to civilian life is predicted for many of our fighting men. Every community should be planning for this return and one of the important factors in the readjustment of the returning veterans will be recreation. Opportunity for sports competition must be furnished and organized. We predict a great demand for community teams in baseball and basketball. Bowling is due for a great boom. We are glad to see that Palatine's bowling proprietor is planning expansion of the local facilities. Palatine needs community planning for a baseball field, hard surfaced tennis courts, and other sports facilities. We hope the proposed park project includes these things because we know that the returning boys will ask for them.

Red Wings to open play this Sunday

The Arlington Redwings officially open the baseball season next Sunday afternoon in Recreation Park when they meet a mid-west league team known as the Semi-Swingers.

So far this spring there has been little chance to practice, but two practice games have been played. Last Sunday in a game featuring mid-season form pitching against batters who had trouble connecting with the curve balls, Oak Park defeated the Redwings 2-0.

From all indications the Redwing club should be about the same calibre as last season. A few more games will definitely show whether or not those players brought in to replace Kirchoff, Peeters and Brodnan will keep the team in the better class which is a tradition to be upheld.

There will not be any question about the Redwings pitching staff because Ladd and Schaefer have shown up very well so far. The catching will again be handled mainly by Mahn, who did most of the receiving last year. Other players holding over from last year are Simpson at first base, Helms and Griffith in the outfield, and Wahl on the infield. Plans are to bring Griffith into third base and to find another infielder for either short or second from the group of new men with the club.

Seek to provide air lines for 58 million annually

Projection of an "adequate" airline system for the United States equipped to handle 58 million passengers annually—15 times more than now—was the feature of an address by Arthur E. Raymond, vice president in charge of engineering of the Douglas Aircraft Company efore the Chicago Forum of the Air Monday.

Raymond pointed out that to accommodate the estimated potential air passengers the U. S. air line of the immediate postwar period will have to increase its route miles from 37,000 to 93,000. Most of the increase will be short haul operations.

It will, Raymond believes, be necessary to increase its "ground stations" from 227 to 1350, an average of 50 miles apart instead of the present 123.

More than four times the present number of transport planes will be needed. Three fourths of these will be the 24-passenger type, the rest a 50-passenger type, Raymond predicted.

The above estimate concerns only passenger transport in this country. It does not consider possible cargo needs nor those which will be necessary for foreign operation.

Under the projected adequate air lines system, passenger miles would increase almost 12 times, to 16 billion per year. Revenues should be 2.5 cents per mile instead of the present 4.5 cents, Raymond suggested. Under such rates the present $61,000,000 per year would increase to about $200,000,000.

MORTON GROVE

The will of Bernhard Rudd, who died in Chicago February 22, leaving a $125,000 estate, has been admitted to probate. He left his share in a business firm to his son George, gave another daughter real estate and canceled her notes to him, to daughter Grace Herbst, of Morton Grove, he cancelled her notes and gave his four children shares in the residue of his estate.

French Word

The term biscuit is a French word meaning "twice cooked." The bread was baked a second time, expelling all moisture, thereby increasing its keeping quality.

Philippines

From the Philippines comes word of Steve Stefanik of Arlington Heights.

"Just a few lines to let you know my present whereabouts and where to send the Herald. Finally arrived in the Philippines after knocking around various islands waiting for our transportation. We were in New Guinea and Dutch East Indies before coming here.

"This 22nd bomb group is a heavy bombardment group using B-24's, we are known as the 'Red Raiders'. I understand this name came from the former C. O. who had flaming red hair.

"Most of the fellows like the Philippines much better than some of the other islands they were on. The Filipinos are very friendly, but really get the best of the bargain when we trade them for fruits and melons, and furniture for our tents. They make chairs, tables, beds and various items from bamboo, some of them that have tools turn out some nice work. The women wash our clothes, which is really a Godsend after doing our own laundry in the New Guinea creeks.

"Sure miss the Herald, haven't received it since last December. Wonder what some of the other fellows are doing now."

His address is Cpl. S. M. Stefanik, 36712084, APO 74, % PM, San Francisco, Calif.

Pfc. Richard Schmidt of Wheeling has recently moved to somewhere in the Philippines. Richie has been overseas over two years and has been in New Guinea for a long period.

From Germany comes word of Donald Oefelein of Arlington Heights.

"Am now getting the Herald and sure appreciate it. Recently had the good fortune to meet a fellow from around home. His name is Crofoot. Sure was a surprise."

His address is T-5 Donald Oefelein, 36726480, APO 339, % PM, New York, N. Y.

Doolittle, Commanding General of the Eighth Air Force, for "the hardships and trying conditions" under which this base, the Command's first on the Continent, has operated.

Once a Luftwaffe field, this depot serves as a re-fueling point, a supply and repair base, and as an alternate landing field for bombers and fighter planes returning from long missions over Germany. More than 600 combat aircraft have been repaired or reserviced and returned to the United Kingdom since shortly after D-Day by this station's personnel."

An alumnus of Central High School, South Bend, Ind., Sergeant Ross was employed as an office manager prior to entering service in February, 1942. He is an auditor in the finance section at this base, and has completed more than two years service overseas in England and France.

Naval corpsman trains at Marine corps Carolina base

From Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, comes word of Kenneth Sherman of Roselle.

"Guess it's my turn to write a few lines again. My paper still arrives every week and I enjoy it most immensely.

"I was transferred to this base the first day of spring for a training and orientation period of between 6 to 8 weeks. I'm a Navy Hospital corspman but have been transferred to the Marine Corps for duty.

"The Marines have no medical department so the navy sends its doctors and corpsmen for duty with them. So I'm on detached or independent duty with the Marine Corps. First off I was outfitted with all marine clothing and they sure give you the gear. I sent my navy clothing home.

"Of course, I wear my navy rate on my marine blouse. We wear either our navy blues and whites or our marine greens and khaki on liberty.

"My course of instruction consisted of class room lectures and field problems as they would arise in combat.

"We went on lots of hikes, bivouacs, close order drill. It was very much like boot camp all over again. They harden us boys up so we may be good marines as well as good corpsman, but the marines kind of hate to admit navy personnel in their ranks.

"Guess the Marines would never recruit anyone for bed-pan duty so they must rely on the Navy. But the corpsmen really have done a good job in the field and the Marines that have seen combat duty stand by us corpsmen, although we take a beating from the stateside Marines.

"When we completed our training, we were under the impression that disease and insects were the greater enemy instad of the Japs in the Pacific Theater. We were given actual field practice in first aid, bandaging, setting up a complete field hospital, drawing blood, giving blood plasma and many other things we are supposed to know, and shall come across.

"This is a Marine Base where Marines receive training in lots of difficult fields. The Marine girls are trained here also, as are some special detachments of army personnel, Netherlands Marines and Marine dogs. The base is around 200 square miles, largely along the New river about 10 miles from the Atlantic ocean.

"They have excellent sporting facilities here and feed you well but I don't care for the Carolina sand and the distance we are from a large metropolitan area. The Carolina moon, stars, and mocking birds are very lovely if you appreciate nature.

"There is an army base about 20 miles from here called Camp Davis. All in all it is a nice base Right at present I'm awaiting transfer. I'll forward you another letter when that time arrives."

His address is Kenneth L. Sherman, PhM2c, Medical Field Service School, 60th Replacement Draft. Barracks 517-A, Camp Lejeune, N Carolina.

Marianas

Now in the Marianas is Bill Freyermuth of Arlington Heights

"I'm now in the Marianas after leaving Camp Beale, Calif. I left there in the middle of March and from there went to Ft. Lawton Washington. After a brief stay there we left and went to the Island of Oahu in the Hawaiian Islands. I got to Honolulu one day and got to see the town. It sure was packed with servicemen.

"We got the first of our mail yesterday and now I'm looking forward to getting the Arlington Heights Herald."

His address is Pvt. Wm. J Freyermuth, 36906416, APO 244 % PM, San Francsico, Calif.

At sea

From back at sea comes word of Fred Kehe of Arlington Heights.

"Well I am back out to sea again after a very enjoyable twenty-one days leave. I sure was planning on going to school after my leave was over but where the slip-up was I never did find out. Even when I reported back to the ship I was told that I was going to be transferred but that's as far as it went. I was planning on being back with all of you again and having another good time but no such luck. I guess I just don't live right. Oh well, all I am looking for now is to make that one way trip home when I don't have to think about reporting back anywhere. Sure hope it isn't too far off.

"Now that the bowling season is over I guess baseball comes up next. I see where the White Sox got lucky and won a few games already this season. That sure is quite unusual for them. But then they better win them now because later on in the season when the good ball clubs hit their stride there won't be much of a chance for the Sox to win then. If you really want to see baseball played as it should, just watch the Cubs play ball. They really are going places this year."

His address is RT3c F. E. Kehe, % FPO, San Francisco, Calif.

Willard "Butch" Schoepke of Arlington Heights sends a short communique from aboard ship in the Pacific.

"Since leaving the states we've travelled quite a distance and I've seen something I have always wanted to see. Due to strict censorship, it is impossible to say many things I would like to say to make this letter interesting.

"A couple copies of the Herald are due and I hope they're waiting at our destination. Now, more than ever, I'll be looking forward to receiving the home town paper. It will be my best means of information as to the whereabouts of friends.

"I have some hope of seeing Rich. That's my greatest desire in this theater."

His address is Willard Schoepke, AMM1c, % FPO, San Francisco, California.

After two years service at sea in the navy, Raymond Rosenwinkel of Cloverdale is now home on furlough. He will remain 30 days.

Ignore Him in Family Matters!

IF you have been the head of the family during your husband's absence, and have become accustomed to managing family matters on your own, you will have to use a great deal of tact to avoid the danger of ignoring your husband in family decisions. You will have to give him a sense of importance in the family without making him feel he is being burdened all at once with all of the family's problems. Give him an opportunity to regain his position as head of the house and invite him to take part in arriving at the daily decisions that have to be made. They may seem trivial to you, and you probably could solve them alone, but his participation in running the family will speed up his recovery.

Ignore Him in Family Matters!
IF you have been the head of the family during your husband's absence, and have become accustomed to managing family matters on your own, you will have to use a great deal of tact to avoid the danger of ignoring your husband in family decisions. You will have to give him a sense of importance in the family without making him feel he is being burdened all at once with all of the family's problems. Give him an opportunity to regain his position as head of the house and invite him to take part in arriving at the daily decisions that have to be made. They may seem trivial to you, and you probably could solve them alone, but his participation in running the family will speed up his recovery.

To mom — The sweetheart of them all

A POEM TO MOTHER

I go to sleep in a GI bed,
Then GI sleep and dream of you.
On a GI pillow rest my head;
My blankets they are GI too,
A GI bugler wakes me up,
Drink GI coffee in a GI cup;
The powdered eggs are GI too,
But GI wish I were with you.
If I come down with GI ills,
They stuff me full of GI pills;
Ointment and drops are GI too,
But, GI'd heal just seeing you.
I'm getting tired of GI drills,
Of GI food I've had my fill;
Of GI clothes I'm tired too,
But GI'll never tire of you.
In GI trucks I've gone on trips,
Go oversea on GI ships:
The pencils I push are GI too,
But GI'll write and think of you.
At night it's GI prayer I say,
As at my canvas bunk I snooze;
And when this GI way is over,
This GI will return to you.
Now GI stands for government issue,
But you're my honey and GI miss you;
And GI hope you miss me too,
For GI love you GI do!

MOTHER LOVE

Tell me: hast thou known a Mother's Love,
That priceless treasure, Oh friend of mine.
The love which is born in realms above
And which of all loves, is so divine.
Before our first earthly days, we measure
The fond true mother love lies buried deep
Within her heart, for the little treasure
That soon will be hers, to cherish and keep.
With Love's Lullaby, the cradle is rocked,
It soothes our first pains with a tender touch,
While in those arms of Love, we are locked
Which ask so little and which give so much.
And then, when the first timid steps we take
The watchful eyes of Love, on duty are
Anxiously following in our wake,
Fearing that child-like, we may wander far.
And so on thru our childhood's happy years,
'Til later when small problems larger grow,
When real trouble replaces childish fears,
It's then, Mother's comforting love we know.
When all the world to us, so relentless seems,
And if instead of Sunshine, Showers fall,
It is Mother's loving voice and smile which seem
To say, that Love and Courage conquer all.
It never fails us and is ever kind,
In times when this world we no longer trust
And if no good in us, the world can find
It's "Mother's Love" which is so true and just.
In later years, thru sacrifice and work
Her dear body, so weak and worn has grown.
Let us not then our sacred duty shirk;
But to her our devoted Love be shown.
If we love, for Mother Love would give,
To return all of her fond thoughtful care
A lengthy span of years we'd have to live
To repay to her, but just a small share.
Oh friend, let us not a moment waste
But let us do our utmost and give our best
So "Mother dear" our grateful love will taste
Before she will go to her Eternal Rest.

—Melanie A. Schreiber.

THE TILLER OF THE SOIL

Her days are filled with naught but toil,
This rugged tiller of the soil;
She putters 'round the yard all day
Raking grass and leaves away.
She digs and grows so very weary,
But her eyes are bright and cheery,
Such work cannot e'er be dreary
To my mom.
She mows, not wasting any time,
Then stops—"There goes the "leven nine'".
She starts again to use her rake
But, "Oh, my goodness, see that snake!"
She kills it, soon resumes her task
The birds who pass, no questions ask
But watch, while they in sunshine bask,
My Mom.
The radish patch of nice neat rows,
A small green leaf or two discloses.
The corn will soon be very high,
Reaching far into the sky;
Some tulips here, some carrots there,
Nature blooms just everywhere.
She guards her plants with tender care,
My Mom.
She's been out since almost seven,
Whoo! Oh dear, it's half past 'leven.
That train's shrill whistle blowin',
blowin',
"Gee, I wonder where it's goin'?"
Better go and get some lunch
For that crazy, noisy bunch;
This is to Mom, on Mother's Day,
Which every year comes in May.

From LOK, though our guess is the Philippines, comes word of Angelo Joanee of Bensenville. We don't have his APO listed, but he mentions the Western Pacific.

"I am very happy to enjoy the news of our district in your paper. Couple years ago I wrote you about the beer and coke ration. Well, it's happening again at this base (the last one was a rough one).

"I am sorry I am not allowed to say where I am stationed, for it would make an interesting story. I can say I am in the Western Pacific.

"Of course, when we first arrived we dug plenty of fox-holes. Keep the news from home coming. Last time I was in B'ville was in September of '41. That's three years overseas. Oh, well, what the heck."

His address is Pfc. Angelo Joanee, 36030865, APO 86, % PM, San Francisco, Calif.

Now on his way overseas is Vernon Sauer of Arlington Heights. His address is Pvt. Vernon F. Sauer, 16197454, APO 15993, % PM, San Francisco, Calif.

Texas

From San Antonio, Texas, comes word of Ehler Loeding of East Maine.

"I am receiving the Cook County paper every week and I sure can't miss the With Uncle Sam letters that are in there every week. I saw the letter of my nephew, Harry M. Loeding this week, that he has received the Purple Heart. I also got a letter from him today. He is now in San Francisco, Calif., and he writes that he is going to Great Lakes within the next ten days.

"I have been in the army 39 months, and so far I have been lucky enough to stay in the States all the time, but it looks as though our outfit will be going across in a few months.

"For almost the first three years I was stationed at Jackson, Miss., and in January, 1945, they transferred me to Stinson Field, San Antonio, Texas. I'm in the Quartermaster section, handling food products for each outfit, but there isn't much to do the whole day.

"The main thing I don't like down here is the hot sun. And there are too many Mexicans to suit me. The best time of my life that I have had in service are the second and third years in Jackson, Miss. My wife was with me there. When I was transferred to Texas, my wife went home to her parents, at 5827 Navarre ave., Chicago.

"I hope this war is over soon, so all the servicemen and women can go home to stay. I wish to thank the publishers of the Cook County Herald which I am always glad to see at mail call on Tuesdays."

His address is Pfc. Ehler A. Loeding, 1001st Material Sqdn, 563rd Air Service Group, AAB, Stinson Field, San Antonio, Texas

From Fort Bliss, Texas, comes word of Walter Linneweh of Palatine.

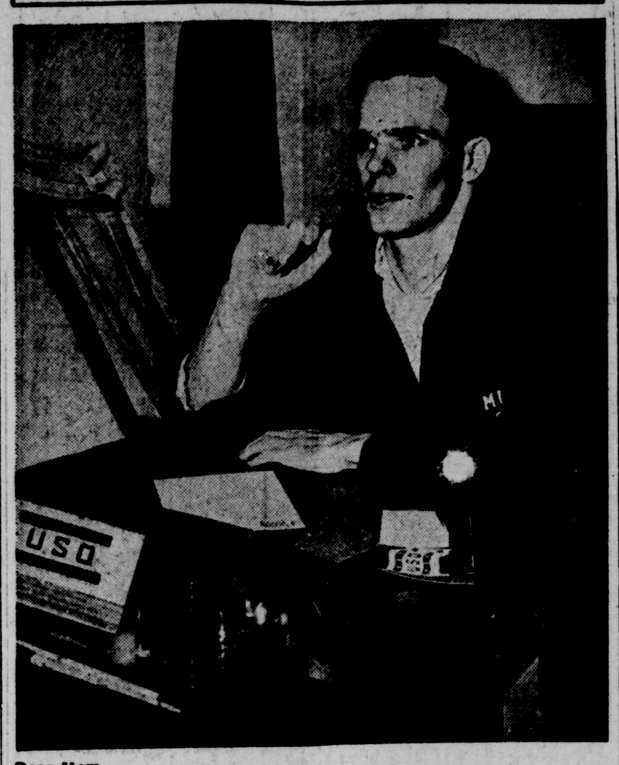
His address is Cpl. Walter Linneweh, 36004032, Slt Det AAAS Troops, Fort Bliss, Texas.

Mother's Day Message



Dear Mom—
"Back in my USO 'home-away-from-home' and that is the next best thing to being home with you on Mother's Day . . ."

Ambulatory wounded servicemen are finding USO Clubs near General Army Hospitals friendly and comfortable places to visit during their convalescence. Letters written to "Dear Mom" tell of their appreciation of USO hospitality and opportunities to meet with civilians again.

Contributions to the National War Fund which finances USO make it possible for this organization to carry on social and recreational activities for men throughout the Western Hemisphere, and through USO-Camp Shows to provide entertainment for our Armed Forces at home and abroad.

England

In an "all out" effort to keep the Luftwaffe on the ground during the Allied crossings of the Rhine, the Eighth Air Force B-17 Flying Fortresses hammered Nazi airfields throughout Northwestern Europe. On one airfield at Zwishenahn, the 385th Bombardment Group unleashed more than 110 tons of high explosives on the runways. Flying as navigator with the 385th's formations was second Lieutenant Erwin J. Erp, Canby, Minn.

Lt. Erp, 25, recently awarded the Air Medal for "meritorious achievement" while participating in bombing attacks against the Reich, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Erp, RFD No. 3, Canby. His wife, the former Miss Gladys I. Reardon, lives in Palatine. A graduate of Canby High School and Walton School of Commerce in Chicago, the airman was employed as a public accountant by Aller R. Smart Co., Dayton, Ohio.

Fort Sheridan

Now at Fort Sheridan, Ill., is Joseph Torrenga of Cloverdale. He reported there April 28. His wife and daughter will continue to make their home in Cloverdale.

Urbana

Pvt. Paul M. Petry of Third and Judson aves., Bensenville, has completed his army specialized training reserve program instruction at the University of Illinois. He was one of 158 army students for whom closing exercises were held Saturday, April 28.

A certificate showing the work he has completed was presented to Pvt. Petry by Col. Charles A. Chapman, commandant of Detachment 2, 3650 Service Unit, Army Service Forces, and Professor of Military Science and Tactics in the University of Illinois.

Pvt. Petry will be assigned to active army duty. He is a graduate of the Leyden Community high school in the class of 1944.

37th infantry

Filipino girls don party garb for Yanks

From the Philippines comes word of Cpl. Harlow Smith of Palatine.

"My conscience is beginning to bother me. Here I've been on this place ever since the start of the campaign and I haven't even so much as written to the paper. I'm very much ashamed.

"Before we arrived I was like everybody else, wondering what it would be like after we landed. I began to like the Philippines, in as much as I was out of the jungles.

"After almost 2½ years in them it was great to see something besides vines and undergrowth. Filipinos were on the beach to greet us with the sign of victory, using two fingers and also their voice. It became tiresome after a while, but to them I can understand what it meant.

"All of them were practically in rags, and some used burlap for clothes. The Japs took about everything they ever owned and some looked very undernourished. We didn't have it very tough when we first landed, for the Japs took to the hills.

"Being in transportation I didn't have to do any walking and the boys did plenty of it. I'm not kidding. We did do quite a bit of driving and were on the go a good deal of the time. Sometimes we were up at 3:30 a. m. hauling out chow to the troops. The boys got hot meals quite often and there were no complaints on canned stuff. Just so it was hot.

"Whenever we would come into a town the people there would give a noisy welcome, and make us feel like Gods. I say the people that were there, because most of them were living outside of town.

"After we had stayed in town a few days the people began wearing better looking clothes that they had hidden from the Japanese. The girls began prettying up with lipstick, their very best clothes and putting their hair in curls to look pretty for us.

"I never saw so many girls with black hair in one place in my life. Alright for the girls, the boys have black hair, too.

"The women aren't bothered by a cigarette shortage. Quite a few of the women and girls smoke cigars, and big black ones. They are not only big and black, but are very strong. I tried them—once.

"What really is surprising though, is to see one of these women and girls walking down the road with a bundle on their heads about the size of my barracks bag (which isn't so small) and smoking the cigars with the lighted end in their mouths.

"Nope, they don't burn their tongues. They say there is a reason for this feat. If they do this they are supposed to be brave, and I must agree that if they do this, they must be.

"When we got to a rest area, we did get a chance to do some dancing and the girls style is the same as back home, jitterbug, rhumba, and tango being their specialties.

"Was fortunate to dance with some American girls who were interned by the Japs. In fact two of the girls I danced with were going back to Chicago. How I envied them. I still say though there is nothing that can compare to the American girls.

"One of my reasons for that statement is because of the custom some of the people have here. A fellow sometimes goes with a girl for many years and it's strictly taboo to hold hands with her, kiss her, or take her out without a chaperone. See what I mean?

"Had the opportunity to see Lyle Taylor of Palatine recently and what a treat that was. He hasn't changed much and we had quite a chat about our experiences. I am very proud of all you people from Palatine for the 230 percent over the quota for the 6th war bond drive. My hat is off to all of you.

"Read of my brother-in-law's (Herb Shermer) experience and he had quite a few. Really am glad he got home for a while.

"I'll say so long for now and like to say 'hello' to all my buddies."

His address is Cpl. Harlow Smith 36012742, APO 37, % PM, San Francisco, Calif.

Such work cannot e'er be dreary
To my mom.

She mows, not wasting any time,
Then stops—"There goes the 'leven nine'".
She starts again to use her rake
But, "Oh, my goodness, see that snake!"
She kills it, soon resumes her task
The birds who pass, no questions ask
But watch, while they in sunshine bask,
My Mom.

The radish patch of nice neat rows,
A small green leaf or two discloses.
The corn will soon be very high,
Reaching far into the sky;
Some tulips here, some carrots there,
Nature blooms just everywhere.
She guards her plants with tender care,
My Mom.

She's been out since almost seven,
Whoo! Oh dear, it's half past 'leven.
That train's shrill whistle blowin', blowin',
"Gee, I wonder where it's goin'?"
Better go and get some lunch
For that crazy, noisy bunch;
This is to Mom, on Mother's Day,
Which every year comes in May.

Texas

From San Antonio, Texas, comes word of Ehler Loeding of East Maine.

"I am receiving the Cook County paper every week and I sure can't miss the With Uncle Sam letters that are in there every week. I saw the letter of my nephew, Harry M. Loeding this week, that he has received the Purple Heart. I also got a letter from him today. He is now in San Francisco, Calif., and he writes that he is going to Great Lakes within the next ten days.

"I have been in the army 39 months, and so far I have been lucky enough to stay in the States all the time, but it looks as though our outfit will be going across in a few months.

"For almost the first three years I was stationed at Jackson, Miss., and in January, 1945, they transferred me to Stinson Field, San Antonio, Texas. I'm in the Quartermaster section, handling food products for each outfit, but there isn't much to do the whole day.

"The main thing I don't like down here is the hot sun. And there are too many Mexicans to suit me. The best time of my life that I have had in service are the second and third years in Jackson, Miss. My wife was with me there. When I was transferred to Texas, my wife went home to her parents, at 5827 Navarre ave., Chicago.

"I hope this war is over soon, so all the servicemen and women can go home to stay. I wish to thank the publishers of the Cook County Herald which I am always glad to see at mail call on Tuesdays."

His address is Pfc. Ehler A. Loeding, 1001st Material Sqdn, 563rd Air Service Group, AAB, Stinson Field, San Antonio, Texas

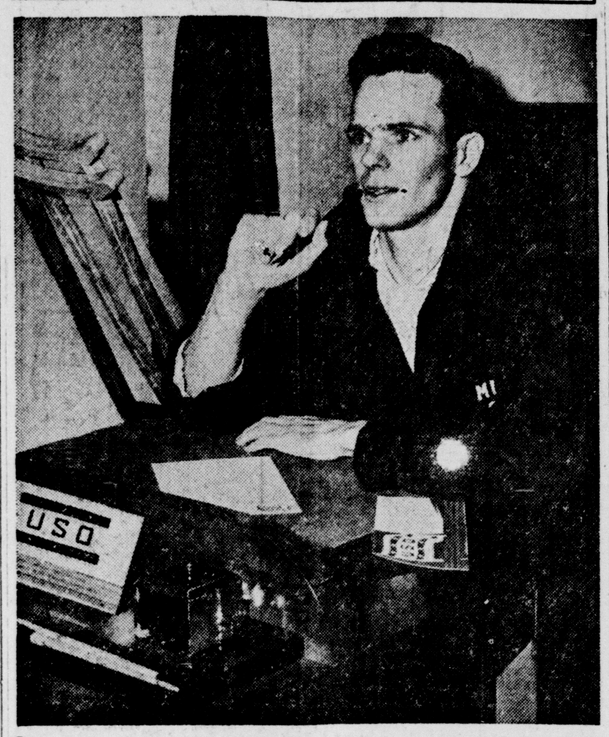
His address is Cpl. Walter Linneweh, 36004032, Slt Det AAAS Troops, Fort Bliss, Texas.

Mother's Day Message



Dear Mom—
"Back in my USO 'home-away-from-home' and that is the next best thing to being home with you on Mother's Day . . ."

Ambulatory wounded servicemen are finding USO Clubs near General Army Hospitals friendly and comfortable places to visit during their convalescence. Letters written to "Dear Mom" tell of their appreciation of USO hospitality and opportunities to meet with civilians again.

Contributions to the National War Fund which finances USO make it possible for this organization to carry on social and recreational activities for men throughout the Western Hemisphere, and through USO-Camp Shows to provide entertainment for our Armed Forces at home and abroad.

England

In an "all out" effort to keep the Luftwaffe on the ground during the Allied crossings of the Rhine, the Eighth Air Force B-17 Flying Fortresses hammered Nazi airfields throughout Northwestern Europe. On one airfield at Zwishenahn, the 385th Bombardment Group unleashed more than 110 tons of high explosives on the runways. Flying as navigator with the 385th's formations was second Lieutenant Erwin J. Erp, Canby, Minn.

Lt. Erp, 25, recently awarded the Air Medal for "meritorious achievement" while participating in bombing attacks against the Reich, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Erp, RFD No. 3, Canby. His wife, the former Miss Gladys I. Reardon, lives in Palatine. A graduate of Canby High School and Walton School of Commerce in Chicago, the airman was employed as a public accountant by Aller R. Smart Co., Dayton, Ohio.

Pvt. Petry will be assigned to active army duty. He is a graduate of the Leyden Community high school in the class of 1944.

Filipino girls don party garb for Yanks

From the Philippines comes word of Cpl. Harlow Smith of Palatine.

"My conscience is beginning to bother me. Here I've been on this place ever since the start of the campaign and I haven't even so much as written to the paper. I'm very much ashamed.

"Before we arrived I was like everybody else, wondering what it would be like after we landed. I began to like the Philippines, in as much as I was out of the jungles.

"After almost 2½ years in them it was great to see something besides vines and undergrowth. Filipinos were on the beach to greet us with the sign of victory, using two fingers and also their voice. It became tiresome after a while, but to them I can understand what it meant.

"All of them were practically in rags, and some used burlap for clothes. The Japs took about everything they ever owned and some looked very undernourished. We didn't have it very tough when we first landed, for the Japs took to the hills.

"Being in transportation I didn't have to do any walking and the boys did plenty of it. I'm not kidding. We did do quite a bit of driving and were on the go a good deal of the time. Sometimes we were up at 3:30 a. m. hauling out chow to the troops. The boys got hot meals quite often and there were no complaints on canned stuff. Just so it was hot.

"Whenever we would come into a town the people there would give a noisy welcome, and make us feel like Gods. I say the people that were there, because most of them were living outside of town.

"After we had stayed in town a few days the people began wearing better looking clothes that they had hidden from the Japanese. The girls began prettying up with lipstick, their very best clothes and putting their hair in curls to look pretty for us.

"I never saw so many girls with black hair in one place in my life. Alright for the girls, the boys have black hair, too.

"The women aren't bothered by a cigarette shortage. Quite a few of the women and girls smoke cigars, and big black ones. They are not only big and black, but are very strong. I tried them—once.

"What really is surprising though, is to see one of these women and girls walking down the road with a bundle on their heads about the size of my barracks bag (which isn't so small) and smoking the cigars with the lighted end in their mouths.

"Nope, they don't burn their tongues. They say there is a reason for this feat. If they do this they are supposed to be brave, and I must agree that if they do this, they must be.

"When we got to a rest area, we did get a chance to do some dancing and the girls style is the same as back home, jitterbug, rhumba, and tango being their specialties.

"Was fortunate to dance with some American girls who were interned by the Japs. In fact two of the girls I danced with were going back to Chicago. How I envied them. I still say though there is nothing that can compare to the American girls.

"One of my reasons for that statement is because of the custom some of the people have here. A fellow sometimes goes with a girl for many years and it's strictly taboo to hold hands with her, kiss her, or take her out without a chaperone. See what I mean?

"Had the opportunity to see Lyle Taylor of Palatine recently and what a treat that was. He hasn't changed much and we had quite a chat about our experiences. I am very proud of all you people from Palatine for the 230 percent over the quota for the 6th war bond drive. My hat is off to all of you.

"Read of my brother-in-law's (Herb Shermer) experience and he had quite a few. Really am glad he got home for a while.

"I'll say so long for now and like to say 'hello' to all my buddies."

His address is Cpl. Harlow Smith 36012742, APO 37, % PM, San Francisco, Calif.

High production and low cost is herd record

The annual report of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 1 for Cook County for 1944 shows a good record for the Oscar Landmeier herd. Quoting from Mr. Gerrit Laseur's—the tester—report we have the following:

"Not only does Mr. Landmeier's herd rank as a high production one but its production cost has been kept remarkably low. One of the reasons for this is undoubtedly due to pasture management. Mr. Landmeier is, as his father was before him, a firm believer in sweet clover for pasture. A combination of sweet clover with sudan grass and alfalfa is depended upon for the pasture season. With a silage capacity of better than 5c per cow and if the weather conditions are unfavorable there is always silage to supplement the pasture.

"The returns of the above feed costs were more than $275 per animal which is about $70 more than the average of the whole association. t costs the average member 30c more to produce 100 pounds more milk and 5c more per pound for butterfat. The herd has been on test in the Cook County D. H. I. A. since the association was started some 13 years ago. As far as can be remembered sweet clover was grown always from year to year and not only the herd but also the fields show the result of good management."

More pork in less time with creep-fed pigs

When spring pigs on rye pasture were creep-fed, 5.6 per cent more of the pigs survived to weaning age than when they were forced to eat with the sows, experiments at the University of Illinois agricultural experiment station reveal, according to J. L. Krider, assistant professor of swine husbandry.

The average daily gains of the pigs are greater under the creep-feeding method, he reported. The difference noted of .06 pound per pig a day is of doubtful significance, but the total gain for 100 pigs would amount to six pounds in favor of those fed in the creep. If fed for 40 days, the 100 creep-fed pigs would show a difference of 240 pounds more pork up to weaning time.

Feed consumption of sows and litters was higher in the creep-fed lots; however, the feed consumed for 100 pounds of net gain, including both sows and pigs, is smaller when the pig creep is used in feeding. Sows and litters required 128 pounds less feed to produce 100 pounds of net gain when the pigs were creep-fed.

Name committee for Bang's tests in Cook county

A communication from the Board of Commissioners to the Farm Adviser has authorized a committee composed of Dan Bergman, Louis Pohlman, John Freise, Fred Pfingsten, Howard Bingham from North Cook County and Art Maue, Chas. Erickson and William Lister to employ a veterinarian to begin Bang's Disease Control in Cook County. Also this committee will be in charge of the veterinarians work in the county. It is anticipated that testing will begin within a few weeks time and farmers wishing to have their herds tested may submit requests at either Farm Bureau Offices where application blanks are available.

Slaughterers must apply to ration board for permit

A communication from War Food Administration states that all farm slaughterers will be required to apply for registration on Form R-315 with their local office of Price Administration during the period May 14 to July 1, 1945, inclusive. All registrations will be at the local War Price and Ration Board. Any inquiries that are made relative to slaughter licenses or permits are to be directed to the Office of Price Administration.

It is urged that all farmers who expect to slaughter livestock on their farms attend to this order and make their application sometime during the period mentioned.

No notice is being sent to farm slaughterers therefore it should be called to everyone's attention so that difficulties will not be experienced later on because of non-compliance.

Instructions issued to local ration boards state " . . . farmer slaughter may not sell or transfer meat after May 14 unless he has registered and received permit . . . Generally speaking, his permit will be limited to amount of meat he sold or transferred during 1944."

Set up program for new dairy feed rates

W. A. Hinz of the Cook county AAA committee, has received an announcement of a new dairy feed payment rate schedule from Lee M. Gentry, State AAA Chairman.

In accordance with this new schedule, payment rates for Cook county farmers for the second quarter period of 1945 (April-May-June), are as follows: For April, 60 cents per hundredweight of whole milk produced and sold and 17 cents per pound of butterfat; for May and June, 25 cents for whole milk, 10 cents for butterfat.

"Dairy producers should submit evidence for all three months of the period with a single application," Mr. Hinz explained. "It is the usual procedure under the Dairy Feed Payment Program to submit applications and evidence for a period within 60 days after the period ends. Applications for April-May-June, 1945, should be submitted within 60 days after June 30."

The July-August-September 1945 payment rates are uniform for the period: 45 cents per hundred lbs. of whole milk delivered and 13 cents per pound of butterfat delivered.

The same payment rates—60c for milk, 17c for butterfat—are scheduled for the winter production months: October-November-December, 1945; January-February-March, 1946.

"The new rates are based on legislation providing funds for this program beyond the present fiscal year," Mr. Hinz explained. "Although the rates are subject to adjustments to compensate for any upward change in milk or dairy prices, the announcement of the program for a full year ahead gives farmers a definite basis on which to plan operations.

Seek extension for deadline on Bangs test

Senate Bill 376 to 379 now in the state legislative proposed to set up some changes in Bangs Disease Control. It provides that calves 4 to 8 months may be vaccinated with calfhood vaccination without first testing the calf or the herd. Adult animals may be vaccinated but a test for Bangs is required before vaccination and animals thus tested, found negative, and then vaccinated may move freely from herd to herd. However after July 1, 1946, under the bill proposed, no female animal or breeding bulls over 8 months may be sold at a private sale or auction unless such animals are very accredited herd or calves under 20 months vaccinated between 4 and 8 months or are animals which were tested, found negative and vaccinated within more than 8 months and accompanied by a certificate or were tested for Bangs within 30 days of the date of the sale. Animals tested and found negative may move freely. Animals tested and which react may be sold only for slaughter or into herds where infection is known to exist.

The Illinois Agricultural Association believes that the date that this regulation is to be in effect should be postponed until July 1, 1947, because the time is too short between now and then to get counties engaged in the Livestock Control Program such as Cook covered. They also believe that for the most part in the State there are too few veterinarians to do all this testing before that time. They believe that farmers should be given a longer period of time in which to get their herds in shape.

"In starting the testing work in Cook County we were fearful that the milk ordinance in Chicago would be enforced as regards to Grade A milk coming from known free herds or from counties engaged in a Disease Control Program states a member of the Cook County Committee set up to employ a veterinarian but it appears that the growing prevalence of Undulant Fever in the state is forcing this issue in the state as a whole and farmers are advised so they may understand the situation now provided. Whether this postponed date can be secured in the legislation or not is not known. We also wish to point out that this proposed legislation has not been passed to date."

What to do about shade, moisture as lawn hazards

Shade alone is probably not so important a hazard to good lawns as we sometimes think, says Dr. F. F. Weinard, associate professor of horticulture, University of Illinois College of Agriculture. There is a moisture element that must be considered too.

Large trees shade the ground in varying degrees, but they also act as umbrellas and keep rain from reaching the ground underneath. At the same time, trees take large amounts of water out of the soil, as much as 50 gallons per day per tree, equivalent to several inches of rainfall monthly. Therefore, in summer the top soil under trees is often exceedingly dry.

In winter, the trees shade the ground so that it does not dry out well and it may be saturated for long periods. Prune off the lower branches to let in more light and air, fertilize well and water in dry weather, continued Dr. Weinard. The difficulty with this program is that the feeding tree roots are numerous, and a large proportion of them are in the top soil. Trees like feed and water too!

There is some question about the advisability of watering other parts of the lawn, except perhaps in prolonged dry spells. Watering in hot weather encourages crab grass, and if you water where there is crab grass, you will have a green lawn, but it will be mostly weedy grass. If you make a practice of watering your lawn, it should be done in such a way that the soil will be moistened to a depth of four or five inches. Light, frequent sprinklings are likely to be worse than useless. There is nothing in our city water supplies that is likely to be harmful to grass, whether the water comes from wells or reservoirs.

Plant after May 15 to control corn borer

"Of the three methods of control of corn borer one is most effective, and that is delayed planting," states Farm Adviser Hughes.

"We could have weather conditions that are very dry and hot the last of June and borers would not be bad. This happened last year and millions of the tiny worms then on the underside of the leaf perished. During the droughts of 1934 and 1936 the progress of corn borer east was checked.

"By planting after May 15, there will be considerable vegetation later than corn. When the moths go to lay their eggs they go for the tallest vegetation. If corn is short then oats, etc., offer better opportunity according to borer's preference. The worms in oats die off not being able to bore in the stalk. Delayed planting on the whole is best control measure. Early sweet corn suffered very badly in 1944. There will be less early corn planted in 1945."

Loans available for poultry production

Due to the serious shortage of beef and pork this year, the demand for poultry and eggs becomes greater each day. In order that farmers and poultry raisers who do not have funds for the purchase of poultry feeds may meet this emergency the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office has announced that loans will be made to them for this purpose.

Mr. John O. Baker, Field Supervisor, stated that farmers or poultry producers, who have adequate facilities and experience, may apply for loans to purchase feed for chicks, laying flocks for egg production or turkeys being raised for market.

In addition to poultry loans, crop loans for the production of cash crops and feed loans for the purchase or production of feed for livestock grown for the market will also be made. Security for these loans will be the poultry to be raised, the cash crops to be grown or the livestock to be sold. The interest on all monies loaned is 4 percent and will be deducted to October 31, 1945, which is the due date. All loans are limited to the applicants cash needs and no loan will be made to applicants who can secure reasonable credit from banks, PCA or other local sources.

Applications for Cook County are being taken by the Office Secretary, at The Farm Bureau, or if further information is desired, write to John O. Baker, field supervisor at Box 1301, Joliet, Ill.

June 1 deadline for AAA sign-up

Farmers have only a short time left in which to sign up for the 1945 AAA program, W. A. Hinz, county AAA acting chairman said today.

"June 1 is the last day on which Farm Plans can be signed. Farmers who wish to participate in the 1945 AAA program and receive payments for carrying out conservation practices on their farms, must have signed a Farm Plan before this closing date."

The county AAA acting chairman said that if a farmer were unable to come to the county office in Arlington Heights, he should get in touch with the AAA office by phone or mail and the farm plan will be mailed to him.

High production and low cost is herd record

The annual report of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 1 for Cook County for 1944 shows a good record for the Oscar Landmeier herd. Quoting from Mr. Gerrit Laseur's—the tester—report we have the following:

"Not only does Mr. Landmeier's herd rank as a high production one but its production cost has been kept remarkably low. One of the reasons for this is undoubtedly due to pasture management. Mr Landmeier is, as his father was before him, a firm believer in sweet clover for pasture. A combination of sweet clover with sudan grass and alfalfa is depended upon for the pasture season. With a silage capacity of better than 5c per cow and if the weather conditions are unfavorable there is always silage to supplement the pasture.

"The returns of the above feed costs were more than $275 per animal which is about $70 more than the average of the whole association. t costs the average member 30c more to produce 100 pounds more milk and 5c more per pound for butterfat. The herd has been on test in the Cook County D. H. I. A. since the association was started some 13 years ago. As far as can be remembered sweet clover was grown always from year to year and not only the herd but also the fields show the result of good management."

More pork in less time with creep-fed pigs

When spring pigs on rye pasture were creep-fed, 5.6 per cent more of the pigs survived to weaning age than when they were forced to eat with the sows, experiments at the University of Illinois agricultural experiment station reveal, according to J. L. Krider, assistant professor of swine husbandry.

The average daily gains of the pigs are greater under the creep-feeding method, he reported. The difference noted of .06 pound per pig a day is of doubtful significance, but the total gain for 10 pigs would amount to six pounds in favor of those fed in the creep. If fed for 40 days, the 100 creep-fed pigs would show a difference of 240 pounds more pork up to weaning time.

Feed consumption of sows and litters was higher in the creep-fed lots; however, the feed consumed for 100 pounds of net gain, including both sows and pigs, is smaller when the pig creep is used in feeding. Sows and litters required 128 pounds less feed to produce 100 pounds of net gain when the pigs were creep-fed.

Name committee for Bang's tests in Cook county

A communication from the Board of Commissioners to the Farm Adviser has authorized a committee composed of Dan Bergman, Louis Pohlman, John Freise, Fred Pfingsten, Howard Bingham from North Cook County and Art Maue, Chas. Erickson and William Lister to employ a veterinarian to begin Bang's Disease Control in Cook County. Also this committee will be in charge of the veterinarians work in the county. It is anticipated that testing will begin within a few weeks time and farmers wishing to have their herds tested may submit requests at either Farm Bureau Offices where application blanks are available.

Slaughterers must apply to ration board for permit

A communication from War Food Administration states that all farm slaughterers will be required to apply for registration on Form R-315 with their local office of Price Administration during the period May 14 to July 1, 1945, inclusive. All registrations will be at the local War Price and Ration Board. Any inquiries that are made relative to slaughter licenses or permits are to be directed to the Office of Price Administration.

It is urged that all farmers who expect to slaughter livestock on their farms attend to this order and make their application sometime during the period mentioned.

No notice is being sent to farm slaughterers therefore it should be called to everyone's attention so that difficulties will not be experienced later on because of non-compliance.

Instructions issued to local ration boards state " . . . farmer slaughter may not sell or transfer meat after May 14 unless he has registered and received permit . . . Generally speaking, his permit will be limited to amount of meat he sold or transferred during 1944."

Set up program for new dairy feed rates

W. A. Hinz of the Cook county AAA committee, has received an announcement of a new dairy feed payment rate schedule from Lee M. Gentry, State AAA Chairman.

In accordance with this new schedule, payment rates for Cook county farmers for the second quarter period of 1945 (April-May-June), are as follows: For April, 60 cents per hundredweight of whole milk produced and sold and 17 cents per pound of butterfat; for May and June, 25 cents for whole milk, 10 cents for butterfat.

"Dairy producers should submit evidence for all three months of the period with a single application," Mr. Hinz explained. "It is the usual procedure under the Dairy Feed Payment Program to submit applications and evidence for a period within 60 days after the period ends. Applications for April-May-June, 1945, should be submitted within 60 days after June 30."

The July-August-September 1944 payment rates are uniform for the period: 45 cents per hundred lbs. of whole milk delivered and 13 cents per pound of butterfat delivered.

The same payment rates—60c for milk, 17c for butterfat—are scheduled for the winter production months: October-November-December, 1945; January-February-March, 1946.

"The new rates are based on legislation providing funds for this program beyond the present fiscal year," Mr. Hinz explained. "Although the rates are subject to adjustments to compensate for any upward change in milk or dairy prices, the announcement of the program for a full year ahead gives farmers a definite basis on which to plan operations.

Seek extension for deadline on Bangs test

Senate Bill 376 to 379 now in the state legislative proposed to set up some changes in Bangs Disease Control. It provides that calves 4 to 8 months may be vaccinated with calfhood vaccination without first testing the calf or the herd. Adult animals may be vaccinated but a test for Bangs is required before vaccination and animals thus tested, found negative, and then vaccinated may move freely from herd to herd. However after July 1, 1946, under the bill proposed, no female animal or breeding bulls over 8 months may be sold at a private sale or auction unless such animals are very accredited herd or calves under 20 months vaccinated between 4 and 8 months or are animals which were tested, found negative and vaccinated within more than 8 months and accompanied by a certificate or were tested for Bangs within 30 days of the date of the sale. Animals tested and found negative may move freely. Animals tested and which react may be sold only for slaughter or into herds where infection is known to exist.

The Illinois Agricultural Association believes that the date that this regulation is to be in effect should be postponed until July 1, 1947, because the time is too short between now and then to get counties engaged in the Livestock Control Program such as Cook covered. They also believe that for the most part in the State there are too few veterinarians to do all this testing before that time. They believe that farmers should be given a longer period of time in which to get their herds in shape.

"In starting the testing work in Cook County we were fearful that the milk ordinance in Chicago would be enforced as regards to Grade A milk coming from known free herds or from counties engaged in a Disease Control Program states a member of the Cook County Committee set up to employ a veterinarian but it appears that the growing prevalence of Undulant Fever in the state is forcing this issue in the state as a whole and farmers are advised so they may understand the situation now provided. Whether this postponed date can be secured in the legislation or not is not known. We also wish to point out that this proposed legislation has not been passed to date."

What to do about shade, moisture as lawn hazards

Shade alone is probably not so important a hazard to good lawns as we sometimes think, says Dr. F. F. Weinard, associate professor of horticulture, University of Illinois College of Agriculture. There is a moisture element that must be considered too.

Large trees shade the ground in varying degrees, but they also act as umbrellas and keep rain from reaching the ground underneath. At the same time, trees take large amounts of water out of the soil, as much as 50 gallons per day per tree, equivalent to several inches of rainfall monthly. Therefore, in summer the top soil under trees is often exceedingly dry.

In winter, the trees shade the ground so that it does not dry out well and it may be saturated for long periods. Prune off the lower branches to let in more light and air, fertilize well and water in dry weather, continued Dr. Weinard. The difficulty with this program is that the feeding tree roots are numerous, and a large proportion of them are in the top soil. Trees like feed and water too!

There is some question about the advisability of watering other parts of the lawn, except perhaps in prolonged dry spells. Watering in hot weather encourages crab grass, and if you water where there is crab grass, you will have a green lawn, but it will be mostly weedy grass. If you make a practice of watering your lawn, it should be done in such a way that the soil will be moistened to a depth of four or five inches. Light, frequent sprinklings are likely to be worse than useless. There is nothing in our city water supplies that is likely to be harmful to grass, whether the water comes from wells or reservoirs.

Plant after May 15 to control corn borer

"Of the three methods of control of corn borer one is most effective, and that is delayed planting," states Farm Adviser Hughes.

"We could have weather conditions that are very dry and hot the last of June and borers would not be bad. This happened last year and millions of the tiny worms then on the underside of the leaf perished. During the droughts of 1934 and 1936 the progress of corn borer east was checked.

"By planting after May 15, there will be considerable vegetation later than corn. When the moths go to lay their eggs they go for the tallest vegetation. If corn is short then oats, etc., offer better opportunity according to borer's preference. The worms in oats die off not being able to bore in the stalk. Delayed planting on the whole is best control measure. Early sweet corn suffered very badly in 1944. There will be less early corn planted in 1945."

Loans available for poultry production

Due to the serious shortage of beef and pork this year, the demand for poultry and eggs becomes greater each day. In order that farmers and poultry raisers who do not have funds for the purchase of poultry feeds may meet this emergency the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office has announced that loans will be made to them for this purpose.

Mr. John O. Baker, Field Supervisor, stated that farmers or poultry producers, who have adequate facilities and experience, may apply for loans to purchase feed for chicks, laying flocks for egg production or turkeys being raised for market.

In addition to poultry loans, crop loans for the production of cash crops and feed loans for the purchase or production of feed for livestock grown for the market will also be made. Security for these loans will be the poultry to be raised, the cash crops to be grown or the livestock to be sold. The interest on all monies loaned is 4 percent and will be deducted to October 31, 1945, which is the due date. All loans are limited to the applicants cash needs and no loan will be made to applicants who can secure reasonable credit from banks, PCA or other local sources.

Applications for Cook County are being taken by the Office Secretary, at The Farm Bureau, or if further information is desired, write to John O. Baker, field supervisor at Box 1301, Joliet, Ill.

June 1 deadline for AAA sign-up

Farmers have only a short time left in which to sign up for the 1945 AAA program, W. A. Hinz, county AAA acting chairman said today.

"June 1 is the last day on which Farm Plans can be signed. Farmers who wish to participate in the 1945 AAA program and receive payments for carrying out conservation practices on their farms, must have signed a Farm Plan before this closing date."

The county AAA acting chairman said that if a farmer were unable to come to the county office in Arlington Heights, he should get in touch with the AAA office by phone or mail and the farm plan will be mailed to him.

Questions on G. I. bill

Question: My son was killed in action. He did not apply for life insurance in the army. I understand the government took out life insurance on him and that I am entitled to its benefits. Can you explain this to me?

Answer: Under Public Law No. 360, 77th Congress, any person in active service on or after October 18, 1940, who died in line of duty or from disease or injury incurred in line of duty, without having in force at the time of his death insurance in an aggregate amount of $5,000, shall be deemed to have applied for and been granted insurance as of the date of entry into active service.

Death insurance benefits are payable only to the widow of the insurred if she is living and not re-married. If, no widow, to his child or children if living, and in equal shares. If he left no widow or children, to the dependent father or mother if living in equal shares.

Question: Under the National Service Life Insurance, may the creditor of the insured or the creditor of a beneficiary attach or secure an assignment of the benefits of the policy for the liquidation of a debt?

Answer: No. Proceeds of these policies are free from claims of civil creditors.

Question: If a third party pays the premiums on a National Life Insurance policy for one in service, and if the latter dies, may the party who paid the premiums be repaid for the premiums he has paid?

Answer: No. No recovery is possible from the Government.

Question: May a veteran of World War II apply for United States Government Life Insurance?

Answer: A veteran of World War II may apply for National Service Life Insurance, which is open only to veterans of World War II. United States Government Life Insurance is the name of the insurance available only to veterans of the first World War by reason of service from April 6, 1917, to July 2, 1921. Veterans of both wars may apply for their respective kinds of insurance whether or not they are now in active military or naval service.

Question: Can the insured change the beneficiary of his government insurance?

Answer: Yes. The insured, at any time, or from time to time, can change the beneficiary of his policy without the knowledge of the beneficiary.

Christian Science lecture given

Mr. Gordon V. Comer, C. S. B of Denver, Colorado, a member of The Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass., delivered a lecture entitled "Christian Science: The Way of Dominion Over Limitations," Monday evening, May 7th, under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Barrington, in the Palatine High School auditorium, Palatine, Ill.

The lecturer spoke in part as follows:

A Common Desire

Probably every one here will agree, no matter how advanced his understanding of Christian Science may be or how new the subject may be to him, that we all desire a greater sense of dominion over certain conditions in our human experiences which impose restrictions upon us. These conditions, which more or less limit our human lives, may be grouped under numerous headings. We may feel the pressure of one or of several of them. But regardless of their specific names, the suggestions of limited happiness, limited supply, opportunity, companionship, strength, courage, health, peace, or intelligence parade before human thought singly or in combinations, and our lives seem to lack the freedom, the peace, the sense of dominion which we all desire, and to which we all are entitled.

Divine Principle, the Basis of Christian Science

Mary Baker Eddy writes: "To grasp the reality and order of being in its Science, you must begin by reckoning God as the divine Principle of all that really is." (Science and Health 275:10-12) Isaiah gave a similar admonition. He points out that the Lord, the Holy One of Israel said: ". . . Ask me of things to come concerning my sons, and concerning the work of my hands command ye me." (Isa. 45:11) But is this what mortals ordinarily do? No. When confronted with limitations they do not begin by asking God concerning the truth about man, but by consulting the material senses. They start with imperfection, rather than perfection. They start wrongly, but hope to end rightly.

Christian Science reveals that each one of us, in his real spiritual identity, is one with true consciousness, and that we can, by recognizing perfect oneness with Truth and Love, realize dominion over limitations.

Conclusion

It makes no difference what condition of human experience seems to be limiting our perfect freedom, Christian Science will help us. Yes, it will heal us, if we are receptive and ready for the healing Christian Science comes to us right where we are. No requirements are made of us which are impossible of fulfillment. Regardless of what our problem may be; regardless of what our situation in life may be; regardless of the length of time during which some problem may have been present with us; regardless of any negative argument, if our desire is right, if we are honest and sincere, if we are willing to think differently about some or many things, and will devote a reasonable amount of time to the study and application of the teachings of Christian Science, we will gain that same sense of dominion over every known kind of restrictive condition which countless numbers of Christian Scientists have gained, and are gaining daily. Christian Science offers us the "pearl of great price" and helps us in every way to claim and to enjoy the use of it.

Plated Bearings

Tons of silver are used weekly as plating on airplane motor bearings. By using potassium cyanide the rate of plating has been trebled. Before the war virtually all the potassium cyanide used in the U. S. came from Germany. However, potassium salts are now being recrystallized from the vast Searles lake salt deposits in the California desert country. Some authorities say air speeds would be reduced 75 miles per hour and loads cut substantially if silverplated bearings were not available.

READING & WRITING

BY Edwin Seaver AND Robin McKown

"Armies fight to stab an enemy country's heart. That means, generally, take the capital. But to take the capital you have to destroy their army. To destroy their army, you have first to take the roads behind them so that they can't run away. To do that you must take high ground. To take high ground you must have an army. To have an army you must have men. To have men, you must have supplies. . . . Our present battles are for supplies. We don't even fight for our lives. That would waste bullets. We just run for them. But we fight Japs for supplies."

IRA WOLFERT

That was the first lesson on guerrilla tactics given to Lieutenant Iliff David Richardson, of the United States Navy, who refused to surrender when the Japanese came to the Philippines, and stayed on to fight. In "America Guerrilla in the Philippines" the journalist and novelist, Ira Wolfert, has written for him the amazing and inspiring story of his adventures. "American Guerrilla in the Philippines" is the Book-of-the-Month Club May selection.

Shortly after the Japanese occupation, some fifty guerrilla bands sprang into existence, some of these unfortunately run by racketeers more interested in raiding the countryside than in killing Japs. Richardson thought of himself as a technician rather than a fighting man; his main assignment was to set up radio communications with the world outside. But he also helped to punish collaborators, stamp out the lawless elements, and to organize the work of the different bands. His abilities finally led to his being appointed liaison head between the whole Leyte guerrilla movement and MacArthur.

There are some scenes of grim horror here; for example, the description of the tortures devised by the Japs for captured guerrillas; there are thrilling moments, as when an American submarine lands secretly to leave its marvelous supply of ammunition, food, cigarettes. There was also a little time—though not much—for romance.

Richardson was out in a small boat with three of his Filipino fighters, when he met up with an American destroyer, part of the fleet invading Leyte. He didn't know how to answer their recognition signal, and the ship turned all its guns upon him. He shouted his name, but they were still suspicious. "I am an American guerrilla," he called, giving it the Spanish pronunciation. They thought he said "gorilla." "The guy is crazy," commented one of the sailors. "He thinks he is Gargantua."

After they were finally recognized and taken aboard, Richardson introduced the three Filipinos as his soldiers. The boys were dressed in abaca shorts, all dirty and ragged, and wore no shoes. "Is this the army?" said a sailor. "Where's their clothes," One of them held up his trigger finger happily. "Sir," he said, "here is my uniform only."

Questions on G. I. bill

Question: My son was killed in action. He did not apply for life insurance in the army. I understand the government took out life insurance on him and that I am entitled to its benefits. Can you explain this to me?

Answer: Under Public Law No. 360, 77th Congress, any person in active service on or after October 18, 1940, who died in line of duty or from disease or injury incurred in line of duty, without having in force at the time of his death insurance in an aggregate amount of $5,000, shall be deemed to have applied for and been granted insurance as of the date of entry into active service.

Death insurance benefits are payable only to the widow of the insurred if she is living and not re-married. If no widow, to his child or children if living, and in equal shares. If he left no widow or children, to the dependent father or mother if living in equal shares.

Question: Under the National Service Life Insurance, may the creditor of the insured or the creditor of a beneficiary attach or secure an assignment of the benefits of the policy for the liquidation of a debt?

Answer: No. Proceeds of these policies are free from claims of civil creditors.

Question: If a third party pays the premiums on a National Life Insurance policy for one in service, and if the latter dies, may the party who paid the premiums be repaid for the premiums he has paid?

Answer: No. No recovery is possible from the Government.

Question: May a veteran of World War II apply for United States Government Life Insurance?

Answer: A veteran of World War II may apply for National Service Life Insurance, which is open only to veterans of World War II. United States Government Life Insurance is the name of the insurance available only to veterans of the first World War by reason of service from April 6, 1917, to July 2, 1921. Veterans of both wars may apply for their respective kinds of insurance whether or not they are now in active military or naval service.

Question: Can the insured change the beneficiary of his government insurance?

Answer: Yes. The insured, at any time, or from time to time, can change the beneficiary of his policy without the knowledge of the beneficiary.

Christian Science lecture given

Mr. Gordon V. Comer, C. S. B of Denver, Colorado, a member of The Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass., delivered a lecture entitled "Christian Science: The Way of Dominion Over Limitations," Monday evening, May 7th, under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Barrington, in the Palatine High School auditorium, Palatine, Ill.

The lecturer spoke in part as follows:

A Common Desire

Probably every one there will agree, no matter how advanced his understanding of Christian Science may be or how new the subject may be to him, that we all desire a greater sense of dominion over certain conditions in our human experiences which impose restrictions upon us. These conditions, which more or less limit our human lives, may be grouped under numerous headings. We may feel the pressure of one or of several of them. But regardless of their specific names, the suggestions of limited happiness, limited supply, opportunity, companionship, strength, courage, health, peace, or intelligence parade before human thought singly or in combinations, and our lives seem to lack the freedom, the peace, the sense of dominion which we all desire, and to which we all are entitled.

Divine Principle, the Basis of Christian Science

Mary Baker Eddy writes: "To grasp the reality and order of being in its Science, you must begin by reckoning God as the divine Principle of all that really is." (Science and Health 275:10-12) Isaiah gave a similar admonition. He points out that the Lord, the Holy One of Israel said: ". . . Ask me of things to come concerning my sons, and concerning the work of my hands command ye me." (Isa. 45:11) But is this what mortals ordinarily do? No. When confronted with limitations they do not begin by asking God concerning the truth about man, but by consulting the material senses. They start with imperfection, rather than perfection. They start wrongly, but hope to end rightly.

Christian Science reveals that each one of us, in his real spiritual identity, is one with true consciousness, and that we can, by recognizing perfect oneness with Truth and Love, realize dominion over limitations.

Conclusion

It makes no difference what condition of human experience seems to be limiting our perfect freedom, Christian Science will help us. Yes, it will heal us, if we are receptive and ready for the healing. Christian Science comes to us right where we are. No requirements are made of us which are impossible of fulfillment. Regardless of what our problem may be; regardless of what our situation in life may be; regardless of the length of time during which some problem may have been present with us; regardless of any negative argument, if our desire is right, if we are honest and sincere, if we are willing to think differently about some or many things, and will devote a reasonable amount of time to the study and application of the teachings of Christian Science, we will gain that same sense of dominion over every known kind of restrictive condition which countless numbers of Christian Scientists have gained, and are gaining daily. Christian Science offers us the "pearl of great price" and helps us in every way to claim and to enjoy the use of it.

Fighting 69th

Raise flag over fort of Occupation Army of '18

"At 11 a. m. on March 27, Fort Ehrenbreitstein, commanding the junction of the Rhine and Moselle rivers, fell to troops of the Fighting 69th Division. It was here, in January, 1923, that the American flag was lowered, when the United States Army of Occupation left Germany after World War I.

"On Army Day, 6 April 1945, the very same flag was raised by a special honor guard of the 69th Infantry Division, symbolizing the victorious reentry of American Forces into Germany.

Thus is told the story of the capture of the fort commanding both the Rhine and Moselle rivers in Germany. Numerous local men serve in the Fighting 69th, among whom is Sgt. Arthur Wahl of Arlington Heights.

General Omar Bradley was present at the flag raising ceremony. In a short address he spoke of the symbolism involved in the capture of the fort by American forces. Sgt. Wahl sent home the account of the ceremony, from whose letters the following excerpts are taken:

"Our mess officer and myself were in partnership in a car that we took away from some Jerries that we captured. We ran it for one move, but it was too light for what we went through. Had my wife's name, Dorothy, painted on the side and took some pictures. I'll never forget that ride as long as I live.

"We've been living in a school house for the moment. We even have beds, so it's not so bad.

"Have received two issues of the Herald since coming over last fall.

"Cooks of our headquarters company were the first cooks to capture Germans. That's a record we're plenty proud of. We were a little nervous, but not too much.

"Our truck driver said when he saw the mess officer and myself in the road with our guns pointed at the Jerries, he was so nervous he didn't know how he got off the truck. But he did and on the run, and then he and the mess officer stood guard while I searched the Germans. We sure had some good laughs over that one when we returned to our unit. It was funny after it was over.

"We received the Combat Infantryman's Badge for the capture of those Germans. That means an increase in pay for me.

"Was caught in an air raid the other day, but our mess truck convoy gave the Nazis so much fire they wouldn't come down to our range. They came back about four times, each time just as we got on the trucks. Then we'd have to jump off again and hit the dirt.

"Am writing on German paper that we took from a German warehouse."

Virginia

From Newport News, Virginia, comes word of Lt. Alfred Pedersen of Arlington Heights.

"I am on the high seas once again. Still traveling here, there, and everywhere. I managed to get back with the same group of Ship Officers, so you can bet everything is going along fine. We live just like one big happy family. To help matters along, the food is tops. The Steward happens to be a pal of mine so you can see that food is the least of my worries.

"I usually receive the Arlington Paper in bunches, or should I say three to five at a time. I really give them the once-over, especially the bowling scores; some of which are darn good and some that appear to be a trifle low. Now! What could be the reason for that? I know, let's blame it on the alleys. That's what I used to do."

His address is Lt. Alfred Pedersen, 0-1081805, % Comm Gen'l, HR PE, Ships Compl., Newport News, Va.

"I started my overseas training in C-46s with the 1st Troop Carrier Command. I like my new assignment very much. We tow gliders, as well as fly them for two hours, just to get an idea how they act behind our planes.

"While I was stationed at Lincoln, Nebraska, I looked up Orville Kurtz of Arlington Heights. We had a nice long chat about the old home town, and the boys in the service. Orville is waiting further assignment as a B-17 gunner."

These men can tell you why the 7TH WAR LOAN is the BIGGEST yet!

YOU ARE being asked to lend more money than ever before—in the 7th War Loan.

These men can tell you why.

They can tell you of giant ships ready to slide down the ways this year.

They can tell you of a whole new air force in the building—huge new bombers and fast new jet-propelled planes coming off the lines by thousands.

They could show you why it is cheaper and quicker to give our Pacific Forces entirely new equipment sometimes—instead of shipping tanks and guns from Europe.

They can, in short, show you 101 ways in which your dollars are needed more than ever to bring America's might to its full strength—so that we may crush our foe the faster, make an end of killing, and bring our men back home.

Will you tell these men "I can't afford to buy my share"?

THE GENERALS and admirals can show us why our money is needed—more money than before.

But other men can show us something, too.

They're the men with twisted, crippled limbs . . . with clever iron hooks instead of hands. The blind men . . . the men with scarred, seamed faces. And perhaps worst of all, the men with blasted, darkened minds.

They can show us, clearly, how small is any sacrifice we make in lending money.

If you have an income, whether from work, land, or capital, you have a quota in the 7th War Loan. Find out what that quota is—and make it!
